Up To Supreme Court

Legal Secrecy Questioned

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A major constitutional legal battle over government secrecy and freedom of the press headed to the U.S. Supreme Court today after appellate rulings in government suits against The New York Times and The Washington Post over articles based on classified Pentagon Papers.

As a Los Angeles federal grand jury began an investigation into how the top secret Pentagon study of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war was leaked, three other news organizations today printed articles they said were based at least in part on the 47-volume report.

An appeals court in Washington ruled Wednesday the Post could resume publication of its suspended series after 6 p.m. Friday. A similar court in New York said the Times could also resume but could not use any material the government contended was dangerous to national security pending a lower court review of those documents.

The Justice Department, which has sought injunctions against the Times, Post and The Boston Globe on the ground that publication of the papers threatened national security, said it would appeal the Washington ruling to the Supreme Court. The Times said it would appeal the New York ruling.

President Nixon said Wednesday that he would make available to Congress the complete 7,000-page study but that the document would remain top secret pending a review of that classification by the executive branch.

Meanwhile, Knight Newspapers Inc., which publishes 11 newspapers, and the Los Angeles Times today printed articles they said were based on the documents. The Chicago SunTimes also ran stories it said were drawn from the secret study and from "government documents."

In Los Angeles, a U.S. District Court granted immunity to two persons subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury probing what a Justice Department spokesman called possible violations of national security laws.

One of the two granted immunity was Anthony J. Russo, 34, a former employe of the Rand Corp., a Defense Department "think-tank." His lawyer said he wanted to challenge the federal immunity statute and russo did not testify Wednesday.

A one-time Rand and Defense Department employe, Daniel Ellsberg, has been named by a former New York Times newsman as the source that gave the Pentagon study to that newspaper.

Ellsberg, in a CBS television interview with Walter Cronkite Wednesday, did not comment on that charge. But he said the notion that the study was leaked to embarrass former President Lyndon B. Johnson "will be quickly allayed" when the full document is made public.

The full study reveals a "sameness of policy throughout four administrations," he said. "The real lessons really come from seeing the whole sweep of the history. There has never been any year when there would have been a war in Indochina without American money fueling it."

The Chicago Sun-Times said in today's editions that documents in the study revealed that a key plotter in the coup that ousted South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem informed the U.S. embassy 26 days prior to the coup that assassination of Diem was one of three courses being contemplated.

The Chicago newspaper also quoted "government documents" as revealing that Kennedy sent then Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to Vietnam in May 1961 with orders to "encourage" South Vietnam to request U.S. ground troops. Diem resisted the idea, the SunTimes said.

Roger Hilsman, a former State Department official, said Wednesday that two memos he wrote in 1963 about the possible overthrow of Diem were taken out of context and misinterpreted by the Sun-Times in its Tuesday editions.

The Sun-Times stories said Hilsman recommended Diem be overthrown if he entered negotiations with North Vietnam. Hilsman said the memos were "contingency documents" that had no connection with Diem's ouster in November.

The Los Angeles Times reported today that the Pentagon study also showed that the National Security Council rejected a recommendation by a State Department expert in 1963 that the United States pull out of Vietnam because it could not win the war against the Communists.

Paul M. Kattenburg, then head of the State Department's Vietnam Working Group, made the recommendation but it was overruled by Secretary of State Dean Rusk, the newspaper said.

The Knight Newspapers story, as published in the Philadelphia Inquirer, cited the Pentagon documents in reporting that former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara proposed a coalition government for Vietnam in 1967.

The sawpf)aid the documents showed McNamara emerging as "a tragic figure who rapidly became disillusioned with the war he had recommended.

The article said McNamara's disenchantment culminated with a recommendation to President Johnson on May 19, 1967, that the United States persuade Saigon to seek an accommodation with noncommunist members of the National Liberation Front—the political arm of the Viet Cong.

In the court actions Wednesday, all nine judges of the Washington appellate panel agreed with a lower court in denying a government request for an injunction against the Post. Two judges filed partial dissent voicing serious reservations about printing some of the secret papers.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell termed the decision "regrettable." Post publisher Katharine Graham said it "sustains the great American tradition of freedom of the press."

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York ruled the New York Times could resume publishing parts of the Pentagon study Friday but ordered further secret hearing on certain papers the government said were vital to the national security.

In Boston U.S. Judge Anthony Julian ordered the Boston Globe to place its copies of the secret study in a bank safe deposit vault, reversing his ruling Tuesday that the papers be impounded.

Final Witnesses Called Today In Medina Case

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — An Army general is among the final witnesses expected to testify today as the pretrial hearing of a motion to dismiss My Lai murder charges against Capt. Ernest Medina nears its end.

Maj. Gen. Bernard Rogers, a top liaison officer for the Secreary of the Army, will be questioned about a sergeant's claim that he was threatened by superior officers with court-martial unless he testified against Medina. S.Sgt. Lawrence Charles La Croix, a member of Charlie Company when Medina commanded the unit at My Lai, testified earlier this week that Rogers and others threatened him with court-martial for premeditated murder if he refused.

Three colonels, one from the Pentagon, flatly denied Wednesday over threatened La Croix, 30, now stationed at Ft. Carson, Colo.

The military judge, Col. Kenneth Howard, indicated he will rule on the defense motion to have Medina's case thrown out on grounds of improper influence by high-ranking officers, after all the evidence is presented.

If the motion is rejected, the defense has 17 other motions for dismissal, and arguments will begin on them.

Medina's two Army attorneys testified Wednesday that 3rd Army staff judge advocate, Col. Wilson Freeman, warned them that seeking a dismissal by the military judge would be wasted effort.

Informant Unnamed, But

Gilmore, Wyatt Are Bound Over

By CHARLES BRADY

JACKSON — Hugh Marvin Gilmore, 21, of 13 Green Meadows, Sikeston, and Ronnie Lee Wyatt, 24, of Cape Girardeau, were ordered bound over to circuit court Wednesday afernoon on a charge of selling narcotic drugs.

The pair were arrested along with 24 other Southeast Missouri youths during the May 12 drug raids conducted by peace officers in Cape Girardeau, Scott, and Butler counties and highway patrolmen.

Cape Girardeau county Magistrate Jerry Estes, who presided at the preliminary hearing, said there is "probable cause for the sale of LSD" and other stimulant drugs and ordered the $5,000 bonds on Gilmore and Wyatt to remain in force until circuit court convenes July 6.

Missouri State highway patrol troopers Frank Burkhead, 25, and R. A. Ashurst, 33, were the only witnesses called to testify by Cape Girardeau County Prosecuting Attorney Al Seier. They testified they were working undercover and were assigned to the narcotic and investigation unit of the patrol. Burkhead said they were present the afternoon of April 9 at 406 North Pacific in Cape Girardeau when the alleged drugs were sold by Gilmore and Wyatt to them.

Weber Gilmore, Sikeston attorney and father of Hugh Marvin Gilmore, was defense attorney for his son at the preliminary hearings and Attorney Don Dickerson of Cape Girardeau defended Wyatt.

The defense attorneys concentrated their questions on learning the identity of a confidential informant whose information to the patrol led to the incident April 9 and the subsequent arrests.

Burkhead had testified that he, Trooper Ashurst, Ronnie Crawford, of Cape Girardeau, and a confidential informant were present at the house on North Pacific at the time Gilmore and Wyatt allegedly sold narcotic drugs to the troopers.

Attorney Gilmore asked Burkhead who the informant was. Seier objected and Judge Estes ruled that the witness did not have to reveal the informant's name.

"Was Mike DuBois present at the time?" Gilmore then asked. Again Seier objected but the judge ruled that the defense had the right to ask if a certain person was present.

"Yes sir, he (DuBois) was there," Burkhead replied. That, for all practical purposes, revealed DuBois as the confidential informant.

DuBois, 26, of Sikeston, pleaded guilty May 24 to a charge of possession of heroin and disorderly conduct in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and was sentenced to 60 days in jail. He was arrested May 21 on a Fort Lauderdale beach.

Burkhead testified after the four arrived at the house, "Wyatt said 'Are you here to get some stuff?' and we indicated we were."

Burkhead commented:

"Wyatt asked Gilmore to go and get it (acid). He (Gilmore) was gone for maybe 60 seconds. He handed the stuff to Ronnie Wyatt."

Burkhead said there was some "hasseling as to the price" and that at 3:47 p.m. he gave Wyatt two $20 and one $5 bills and Wyatt in turn gave him the white substance.

Ashurst testified that he had met Wyatt at a parking lot in Sikeston through a youth named Bill Prindle of Sikeston. He said he had met Wyatt only once before the April 9 incident.

The defense attorneys and the prosecution agreed the substance alleged to be a narcotic drug need not be present at the preliminary hearing.

COMPLETION OF THE NEW STANLEY MUFFLER COMPANY in East Prairie is scheduled for July 15 and will employ 60 when production is in full swing.

Plant Near Completion

EAST PRAIRIE— Completion of a building for Stanley Muffler Company, Inc., is scheduled July 15, said Owner-Manager Donald Hubbard, who drew up plans for construction of the 80 by 200 foot steel building and is supervising the construction work.

The offices and workers lounge of the truck terminal will be retained by the muffler company and the garage will be converted into a machine shop and storage department.

Stanley Muffler, named for Hubbard's son, is an expansion of the Hubbard Muffler Co., of which Hubbard owns 30 per cent. In addition to tractor mufflers, the plant will manufacture foreign car and truck mufflers.

The company will begin production Sept. 1 with two assembly lines capable of producing 1,200 mufflers per day.

The company will employ 30 at first and after production is in full swing, the number will double probably, Hubbard said.

Arrest after Razor Attack At Howardville

NEW MADRID— Lee Andrew Hudson, 29, of Memphis, this morning waived preliminary hearing on a felonious assault charge in magistrate court before Judge Leo Hedgepeth. Bond of $1,000 was set.

Charges against Hudson were made after his arrest at 1 a.m. today by Howardville Marshal C. B. Correthers and Lilbourn Marshal Johnnie Martin.

Explosion Kills Two in Aqueduct

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A predawn natural gas blast in an underground aqueduct killed at least two men today and left the fate of 15 others in doubt. Six hours later workers, who had said they expected to find no survivors, took one man out alive.

The 1:50 a.m. explosion was in a five-mile-long tunnel under construction two years in foothills of the San Gabriel Mountains 30 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles.

The survivor was brought out by a rescue crew, his face blackened and eyes closed. There was no immediate word on his condition.

Earlier, one body had been brought out and officials said a second body had been found.

Paul Bagley, 67, said that after the blast he heard fellow workers "hollering for help" and tried four times to rush to their aid, but was driven back by rolling clouds of choking black smoke.

"You couldn't breathe," he told newsmen. "If you could breathe I'd have got in there. The fourth time I couldn't hear them ... they died right there."

Bagley, exhausted and sootcovered, said he and another worker who survived the blast, Louis Renteria, 51, were about a mile from the scene of the explosion, which officials said was about 800 yards from the dead end in the tunnel.

A spokesman for Lockheed Shipbuilding Corp., the main contractor on the tunnel, said the explosion apparently was caused by a spark from drilling equipment that hit an undetected pocket of natural gas.

Although earlier tests had found no gas in the area in which the men were working, he said, "Apparently they hit a gas pocket."

What's A Miner Mayor and Why?

By JUDY GAZETTE

What kind of man would want to be mayor of Miner, the town of 700 on the outskirts of Sikeston? Surely if such a man had real political aspirations, he would start somewhere else say, the county seat or Sikeston, itself. Does he even have such aspirations?

"If you feel a need to use your influence," he commented seriously, "for the betterment of your community, then it's an obligation."

Sadler was born in Sikeston in 1935, attended schools here, and married Peggy Joyce DeField of East Prairie in 1953. His father was Phillip Sadler, and of his mother, Mrs. Montie Sadler, he says, "she's a fine Christian lady."

"Then Sharon, our oldest, came along," he laughed, "and making money became more important. Then I sold cars in order to make more."

When he was younger, he wanted to be a mechanic -- a good one -- and in retrospect, thinks he might have liked to be a doctor.

"It's too late now," he said. "I'd never make it."

In 1956 he went to work for Fabick Brothers Equipment Company in Sikeston as a mechanic. He intended to learn the background heavy equipment and be a salesman.

"I thought that would provide more income," he explained, "but I just kept moving up in the mechanics department, and for the last several years I have been a field service supervisor."

In September of 1970, while helping work on a tractor, he injured his back, rupturing three discs in his back. Since, he has been in and out of more hospitals than a drug salesman. Although he is unable to work, he is still employed by Fabick. His last hospital stay ended several weeks ago.

"It's a big shock at age 36," he said, "to have your background and everything you've prepared for come to a halt. I suddenly realized that I have to use my head or hands or influence, instead of my back! It's as though I have to reprove myself in other fields."

So with additional time on his hands, Sadler decided to run for the Miner city board. He succeeded and was then elected chairman, unseating Harold Lewis.

RED STAR OVER NEW YORK

Something new is taking place in New York. You can be awakened to canned voices on the street corner singing: "arise, ye prisoners of starvation; Arise, ye wretched of the earth. For justice thunders condemnation . . ." the words of the Communist anthem, the Internationale.

New Yorkers peer out of their window and look at the red flags massed below. In the center of these flags is a star. Above it are the words "Fight for Socialism," and below "Progressive Labor Party." There are no American flags.

The sound truck blares out the voices of the speakers in Spanish and English: "Power to the people!" After each speech the record plays the Internationale.

When you go down to the street corner to have a look at these people, you are surprised to see vigorous young men and women singing: "Arise, ye prisoners of starvation." Not one in the crowd looks as though he or she has ever missed a meal.

Pedestrians are handed a sheet by one of these "wretched of the earth." It contains a big red star in the center. At the top are the words: "Workers of the World, Unite!" the Communist slogan handed down by Karl Marx.

Printed on the star are the slogans of the Party: "Fight For Socialism! Crush Racism! 6 Hour Day for 8 Hours Pay! Unite With All Workers Who are Fighting U. S. Bosses! Drive U. S. Imperialism out of Southeast Asia Now! Workers and Oppressed People of the World, Unite!"

Red Star over New York, 1971. What can the most mechanzied and industrialized country in the world learn from Russian Communism? They are only now getting a mass-production automobile plant, thanks to Italian and American help. They cannot feed themselves regularly because socialized farming is inefficient, a great corrupter, a scandalous non-producer.

Commented the news dealer on the corner: "Yes, power to the people. They plan to be the commissars." That's what Communism is: a grab for absolute power.

JAPANESE ELECTION

An election campaign is under way in Japan and the Japanese are enduring it calmly. At stake are half of the 250 seats in the upper house of the Diet, the House of Councillors. The real center of power in the legislature is the lower House of Representatives, which may explain the public's lack of enthusiasm. The aristocratic upper chamber of prewar times, the House of Peers, was demoted to an inferior position by the 1947 Constitution. The House of Representatives can easily override any action the upper chamber takes.

To prepare for the election on Sunday, June 27, leaders of the major political parties tour the cities, speaking from motorcades and platforms. In his book Japan: Images and Realities (1969) Richard Halloran describes a typical Japanese political campaign. "the speeches are monotonous recitations of known records and positions; no fireworks, no mudslinging, no urgent cries either for a new Japan or a return to the good old days. A politician, once asked why he bothered to go through the barren, futuile motions, replied: 'Ah, but you don't understand. We must do this to show our sincerity. If we didn't, the people who have voted for us before will think that we are insincere and vote for somebody else.' " Such equanimity may surprise Americans, but as Halloran points out: "The vote to a Westerner is a right, to a Japanese a duty or obligation."

The Liberal Democratic Party, really a coalition of conservative, business-oriented factions, has been the ruling party since 1948. The results of this election could influence the party's choice of a successor to Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, who may be replaced next fall. A report in the Christian Science Monitor (June 9, 1971) indicated that the LDP is loosing its firm hold on the electorate, and emphasizes the importance of the election as an indicator of Japan's future. "Decisions that are made now on such questions as pollution, the quality of life, China policy, the Okinawa reversion agreement, Japan's national security and emerging role in world affairs, nuclear weapons, and amendment of the peace clause of the Constitution will shape the next decade of the country's development."

RAILROADING AS WE REMEMBER IT

Now all but forgotten, for many years the Pullman car was the symbol of luxury transportation and 10-2-1 was the designation of the standard car consisting of 10 sections of facing seats which made down into an upper and lower berth; two compartments with an upper and lower berth; and one drawing room with an upper and lower berth and a couch. The compartments and the drawing room could be made into a spacious suite by opening the connecting doors.

The approach to this transportation opulence was not casual, but in an atmosphere of palatial grandeur where competitive rail services engaged in a departure ritual presided over by the train conductor and the Pullman conductor. This was the passenger check-in dance, handed down to and now performed in much the same manner by the scheduled airlines. Most of the rest of passenger rail service including the vast depots are now just a memory.

Intercity roads graveled but not hard surfaced were pounded to a fine and choking dust which reduced visibility by the steadily increasing car and truck traffic. When these intercity roads were surfaced, the death knell of the passenger train and many a small town was sounded.

Landlocked small cities watching their rail passenger service vanish with the advent of the motor vehicle and hard surfaced "farm to market" highway system pinned hopes for competitive survival on the airplane as the aviation industry converted from a war-time to peace-time economy.

Numerous aviation clinics were attended by experts and others to formulate some manner of directional thinking, out of which came support for a nationwide airport development program and a system of "feeder" airlines to reach every small city with connecting service from here to anywhere in the world.

But the moment of economic truth for passenger transportation is found with either long haul traffic, high density traffic, or both, whether it be bus, rail, or airplane. Many a small city could not sustain even subsidized "feeder" airline service. Larger cities could not sustain both rail and scheduled air service. Rail passenger service has now passed into the hands of the federal government where the "cream" can be skimmed by tolerant avoidance of regulatory agencies.

So, there is nothing new in the world even if we like to call it progress.

A chamber of commerce official has estimated that "seekers after greener pastures" carry ten to twenty per cent of a community's wealth into larger cities -- often into other states.

"The sad part of this drainage on the community is that, more often than not, the long-distance shopper spends more than he would at home," he said.

This comment did not refer to extra money spent on travel costs and the value of wasted time. The speaker was talking about the cost of goods purchased.

What is the explanation for the shopping wanderlust which plagues so many communities?

There are several rationalizations:

Some people think it is smart to say that they went shopping in Metropolis or Cosmopolis.

But most of the wandering shoppers are just ordinary hard-pressed consumers who honestly believe the grass is greener over the hill. The realistic local merchant should try to understand the basis for this latter class of out-of-town shopping. It is a situation in which he shares the blame.

Out-of-town shopping is most often the result of advertising which come into the local community in regional publications.

The local merchant who neglects his advertising should not be surprised when potential customers look to outside firms which do provide essential shopping information.

CUSTOM-MADE TOWN BUILDS -IN SAFETY

A new town for 75,000 people being built on 12,000 acres of open farmland has incorporated the best new ideas in traffic control.

Litchfield Park, Arizona has arterial roads which are limited access parkways, fenced off and landscaped. There are no pedestrians, roadside stores, homes, driveways, or parked cars to interfere with the flow of traffic. Very few traffic lights are needed.

All businesses are in shopping centers and industrial parks. Even gasoline stations are off the main roads. Homes are built on cul-de-sacs or long, looping roads that return cars to their original entry point.

A complete 35-mile long network of pathways winds throughout the town for pedestrians, and bicyclists. It crosses main roads via overpasses, and keeps vehicular traffic entirely separate from foot traffic. The road system has safety built-in.

The freeways will be heavily traveled during the summer vacation months ahead. With this in mind, Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, today urged drivers to practice the utmost courtesy as they travel on the superhighways.

"It is extremely important that drivers practice courtesy on the freeways during the vacation months ahead," Hockaday stated. "The large volume of traffic expected during this time of the year combined with the high speeds traveled on these superhighways call for drivers to show a great deal of courtesy to their fellow travelers. It is also imperative that they be extra alert for any emergency situations."

The Patrol Superintendent then pointed out several ways a motorist can practice courtesy as they travel on the freeways: 1. Watch for drivers entering the freeway. Adjust your speed to help the new arrivals make a smooth, safe entry. 2. Signal your intention to change lanes. Don't dart into another driver's lane without warning. 3. Keep pace with the legal flow of traffic. Slow driving on high - speed highways is dangerous. 4. Avoid moving from one lane to another. Stay in the right - hand lane unless overtaking or passing another vehicle. 5. Keep your distance from the car ahead. Stay far enough back to allow for unexpected stops.

"A single discourteous act on a high - speed, heavily traveled freeway can easily result in a tragic accident," Hockaday concluded. "I urge drivers to be extra alert and to practice courtesy as they travel on the freeways in Missouri and throughout the country this summer."

INDO-CHINA PLOT

The NEW YORK TIMES has acquired a copy of a lengthy Department of Defense report on U.S. participation in war in Indo-China which was compiled on orders of former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara which makes the document suspect, but the 3,000-page analysis is interesting to say the least. The study shows that four administrations--Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson--progressively involved the U.S. in the Viet Nam struggle.

Generally, according to the TIMES, the Truman administation decided to give military aid to France in its fight against the communist-led Viet-Minh; President Eisenhower decided to rescue a fledgling South Viet Nam government from a communist take-over; the Kennedy administration jumped from a limited-risk participation to a broad commitment; the Johnson administration decided in the spring of 1964 to wage "overt" war.

But the fantastic portion of the report declares that an expanding program of bombing of North Viet Nam was undertaken despite the fact that our intelligence community did not believe it would stop Hanoi's support of the Viet Cong and that the bombing program was pursued even though it was deemed "militarily ineffective" within a few months after it was begun.

The Defense Department report said our first efforts were containment and in later stages of the war we aimed at preserving the prestige of the U.S. The analysis, prepared by McNamara's instigation, also concluded that warfare planned by this country in 1964 was not made known to the public for a year. One can only conclude that this statement leaves Mr. McNamara's creditibility gap showing. HLH.

ADDICTION: BILLIONS AND DEATH

Can't Cure Inner City Crises Without Slashing Narcotics Deluge From Nation's Youth

by Victor Riesel

After talking with James Buckley no one ever again could misread the word conservative as antediluvian. The junior senator from New York, the first Conservative Party candidate to be elected to the upper house -- or Congress itself -- is refreshingly literate, informed in depth and unafraid to answer to the word conservative if he hears the call.

He is young by political standards. Yet already there are the usual whispers that he is on his way towards the national ticket before the decade is actually over.

One evening as we left my studio after a broadcast I asked Mr. Buckley where he thought the real national crunch was. In the inncer city, said he. I asked what he meant, specifically. Here is his specific answer.

By James L. Buckley
from New York

Washington:--On April 1, I introduced legislation in the United States Senate which has as its aim the termination of foreign economic assistance furnished by the United States to any country which fails to take appropriate steps to eliminate the production, processing and export of narcotic drugs.

I believe this legislation, which is now being co-sponsored by 12 other senators, to be of the utmost importance to the well-being of the people of the United States.

The Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs estimates that 80 per cent of all heroin reaching our country originates in Turkey. The opium grown there is transformed into morphine base and shipped from Turkey to France where the morphine base is converted into heroin. It is eventually smuggled into the United States.

Permit me to present some shocking facts.

First, New York City has, within the past eight years, lost more lives to drug abuse than the entire state of New York has lost in the Vietnam war. As of June 1970, heroin overdoses and complications had become the major causes of death for persons in New York City between the ages of 15 and 35.

Second, in New York City 100,000 narcotic addicts spend an average of $35 a day on narcotic drugs, or approximately $1.3 billion a year.

Third, 98 per cent of narcotic addicts support their drug habit by turning to crime.

Fourth, there are approximately 200,000 heroin addicts in the United States.

In addition to these facts, over 1150 human beings died last year in New York City from narcotic-related causes. It is estimated that approximatley half of those who died were under 23 years of age, and more than 200 nineteen or younger. The youngest was only 13. Seventy-five per cent of those unfortunate people died as a result of acute reactions to heroin overdoses, while 15 per cent died during or following violence involving narcotics, and another 10 per cent died from hepatitis, tetanus and bacterial endocarditis, all of which were related to heroin usage.

Drug addiction cuts across all social, ethnic, racial and religious lines. The teenager in the ghetto and the teenager in the Park Avenue penthouse are tempted to fall into the drug trap, and thus ruin their lives. Too many parents are either unaware of the hazards to their children, or assume that their children are too smart to play around with drugs until suddenly and unexpectedly they are confronted with the terrifying fact that their 18-year-old son or daughter is a heroin addict. This news usually reaches these parents when the child is arrested for murder, armed robbery, burglary, mugging or some other crime which the child resorts to in order to pay the pusher for the drug which supplies his habit and, in some cases, leads to a pointless grave.

Information obtained from the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs reveals the appalling extent to which the drug epidemic is spreading across our country. Addicts have been found in such unexpected rural places as Gunnison, Colo.; Pasco, Wash.; and Cermit, Texas. For each addict who is finally found, it is believe that there are dozens walking the streets of America, unable to function properly, and thus turning to crimes, many of the most serious magnitude.

There are other statistics which will come as a surprise to most Americans. For example, very few people know that over 60 per cent of all the robberies which take place in New York are committed by persons on drugs. Seventy-five per cent of the robberies, burglaries, larcenies and auto thefts in affluent Fairfield County, Conn., are believed to be narcotic-related. And in Albuquerque, N.M., drug addicts or others who have been addicted, commit 75 per cent of the burglaries.

Mayor Lindsay has revealed that one half of all prison inmates are drug addicts and that the taxpayers of the city are required to spend $50 million a year on court, prison and police services related to these addicts. The mayor also revealed that in 1968 there were 22,000 drug-related arrests, but within two years that figure had reached 52,000.

Narcotic drugs can be purchased in many elementary schools in America, and one congressman recently testified that "Hard drugs on some school grounds are as easy to get as chewing gum."

I fully realize that the legislation which I have introduced will not bring a sudden halt to narcotic addiction, but I believe that we have to start someplace. Take our money out of the pockets of those nations which are growing rich on the debasement, destruction and in many instances the sudden death of our youth, and a much more serious effort will be made by those nations to terminate the production, processing and trafficking in narcotic drugs than is now being taken by them.

I believe that a reduction in the supply of heroin will drive the cost even higher than it is today. This, in turn, will take the initial contact with heroin out of the financial reach of the first-timer user, and make it more difficult for the casual experimenter.

Our great cities are faced with problems, many of them of the most profound magnitude. I believe that, before solutions to these problems are arrived at, the problems caused by narcotic addiction will first have to be met and solved.

When I introduced my legislation (which is known as S.J. Res.78) I did so because I believed that it would strike at the heart of a critical problem that has entered hundreds of thousands of American homes, and touched, in the most tragic way, the lives of innocent and unsophisticated young people who had been lured into a horrendous and hideous habit. Heroin addiction and the enormous problems it creates constitute a national tragedy, and an avenue to personal disaster.

(I urge all who agree with Senator Buckley to write today to your senators and congressmen and ask them to support his legislation, S.J. Res.78. The life you save may be that of your dear child. Let's get behind the effort to eliminate the illegal importation of narcotic drugs into our country, and the time to get behind that effort is now.--Victor Riesel.)

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Joe McGinnis's book, "The Selling of the President," revealed in excruciating detail how presidential candidate Richard Nixon was marketed to the American public in 1968 like a bottle of bubble bath beads.

He was taken in hand by advertising and television specialists who prepared him for public display. They preened, powdered and pomaded him. They taught him how to project a warm, fatherly, presidential image on the tube.

What Nixon stood for was of secondary importance. The overriding goal was to sell not the issues but the image to the people.

Now he is being fitted with a new image for 1972. The conservative Nixon of 1968 is rapidly being liberalized before our eyes.

He fired his barber and hired Milton Pitts, a tonsorial artist, who is billed as "Washington's leading men's hair stylist."

Pitts promptly washed the oil and goo out of Nixon's hair, combed out the curly ends, lowered his sideburns, and gave him a razor-cut. Result: a more modern "natural" look. According to one insider, the President even colors his hair to hide the gray.

Nixon's tailor, H. Freeman & Son of Philadelphia, is also sending the President modestly designed double-breasted suits with wider lapels. Nixon has also started wearing more modern, three-inch wide ties.

He watches his weight (170 pounds), gets plenty of sleep (seven hours minimum), and shaves as often as three times a day.

--LOCKER ROOM JOKES--

Attorney General John Mitchell, who is expected to resume his role as campaign manager in 1972, also appreciates the value of a good image. At a recent Washington party, he was heard to declare that the "Nixon men are not all squares." To prove his point, he rose to toast the hostess and told two locker room jokes of W.C. Fields vintage.

"We have got to change the Nixon image," he later explained. "People do not see the President for what he really is or see what he is really doing."

An ally in his cause, Mitchell said, was Treasury Secretary John Connally, who had already met with some Republican Senators to admonish them for "not selling the President to the country."

If GOP Senators aren't selling the President as they should, the White House crew is more efficient. The Presidential image makers weigh Nixon's every word and monitor his every step. They plan campaigns to promote his programs, bring in congressmen for breakfast meetings, coordinate with business leaders and special interest groups, arrange endless briefings.

They paint the President as a wise ruler forever being fondled by the rosy fingertips of fortune. They rush to poke their thumbs in every hole in the dam. The Laos operation, they would have us know, was a smashing success; the campuses, their intelligence sources say, are now seas of tranquility.

--NIXON AND NETWORKS--

For all of the Administration's bellyaching about the networks, Nixon has commandeered more prime time on the nation's TV screens than did all his predecessors combined.

Image experts note that Nixon is careful to choose formats that tend to project him as a "warm" figure. They also point out that when he is interviewed on television, he invariably chooses to be questioned by the network "anchor men" rather than by reporters who cover him daily and are more familiar with the White House operation.

For the public's benefit, President Nixon pretends to be unconcerned about his image and deprecates the "experts" who attempt to plaster his beard with makeup or adjust the television lights to hide the bags under his eyes.

"I don't worry about images..." he said on television. "The public relations experts always come in and are constantly riding me... 'You have got to do this, that and the other thing to change your image.' I am not going to change my image."

This seeming indifference over his image is really part of the studied effort to make his image appear genuine. Actually, the White House is crawling with professional image makers who hide behind a variety of titles but who contribute to presenting the President to the public in the best possible light.

No one will say how many image specialists are on the White House payrool. But confidential sources put the number at about 55, counting secretaries.

Of course, all Presidents have attempted to sell themselves and their programs. But never in the history of the Republic has a President attacked the task with more cold calculation and more expert help than has Richard Nixon.

--WASHINGTON WHIRL--

Bargain Cadillacs--We were the first to report that congressional chairmen were able to lease gleaming new Cadillacs, Lincolns and Chrysler Imperials for token fees. It is only fair to report, therefore, that we have now caught the Pentagon wangling the same bargain. Ten new Cadillac Fleetwoods have been delivered to the Pentagon for the riding comfort of high officials. The Pentagon pays less than $100 a month for each car. Anyone else would have to pay at least four times that amount. General Motors happens to be one of the nation's biggest defense contractors. The officials who ride around in GM's $100-a-month Cadillacs, of course, determine who gets defense contracts.

Tax Cuts--President Nixon is eager to get the economy booming again before the 1972 election. He is tempted to stimulate the economy by speeding up the income tax cuts that are scheduled to take effect in 1972 and 1973. The President's economic advisers, however, have warned that too much stimulus could cause soaring inflation. Best guess is that the President will accept the political risk of a tagging economy and will hold to a slower pace of recovery.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

There is no real reason why we should always try to rid ourselves of unreasonable prejudices. Being ornery and contrary now and then is part of human nature and helps keep us human. For example, I have spent all my life on the lam from lamb. I know it is unreasonable to flee lamb when so many people agree it is tender, tasty and nutritious, but any occasion on which I can evade eating lamb is a moral victory. To me lamb is still a mouthful of wool, fit only for women and children too small to defend themselves.

I feel the same way about eggplant. Whenever I hear the word, I get a mental image of a green hen turning into a halfripe tomato.

Some of the best customers of door-to-door salesmen are recently retired men. They are so grateful to have somebody to talk to beside their wives that they usually buy something after listening to the sales spiel.

Never lend money to a guy who half the time wears one of his sox inside out. You can't trust anyone who is that badly organized.

Sneak kindly to your wife for the next couple of months, fellows, and bring her home a rosebud now and then. After that she won't mind so much reassuming the seasonal anonymity of being just one more of television's pro football widows.

It is time to go on a vacation if you find you are making more than one trip a day to the pencil sharpener simply because you can't think of any other way to act busy.

When a politician starts waving the flag too hard, it's a good idea to look under his rug and see what he is seeking to hide.

Wives like following the principle of togetherness in marriage more than husbands do. Togetherness in small details, that is. A wife is always willing to join her husband's fasting program when he has to go on a diet, but feels hurt and neglected when he shows unwillingness to join her in a diet she has to follow.

About the only consoling thing you can think of when one of your friends over 50 takes up jogging, is that you'll get a half day off from the office to attend the services for him.

Experience is what costs a fellow so much to get when he doesn't want it, and what so many business firms pay so little for when they demand someone who has it.

Ann Landers

He Played Footsie And Now She's Out to Get Him

Dear Ann Landers; I am not a Yale student and this is no joke. I am a married man who loves his wife and I am not interested in fooling around. The problem is my best friend's wife.

About three months ago a group of us went to a dinner party at our club. This woman started to play footsie with me under the table. I had had a few drinks and responded, just for the fun of it. She took me seriously and now she won't leave me alone. She keeps calling my wife and setting up evenings together. This woman is sly as a fox and can figure out the goldarndest ways to corner me. When I leave the room for whatever reason, she is behind me. Last night when I went to the bathroom I had to move fast to lock her out.

I don't want to tell my wife but I wish she would stop accepting invitations from this woman. Although her husband and I are good friends I can see him at lunch.

Please print your advice in the paper. I can't have any letters from Ann Landers coming to either my home or my office. Thank you.---Sweating.

Dear Sweat: Tell Mrs. Mustard Plaster of 1971 that her agressiveness is becoming obvious to others and she'd better cool it. Explain that she is undoubtedly the most appealing woman since Helen of Troy but you have somehow summoned the courage to resist her charms and she should please leave you alone.

Dear Ann Landers: A while back a reader asked you if your teeth are your own. You said "Yes" and I am sure you were telling the truth because of the unfeeling way you reply to people who have denture problems.

It's easy for you to sit in Chicago with your own teeth and give people advice on dentistry, but unless you've been through a complete extraction and suffered with ill-fitting dentures, you are in no position to tell anybody anything.

I fiddled around with a $400 set of dentures for three months. Finally I told the dentist I would report him to the County Dental Society if he didn't stop monkeying around with adjustments and make me a set of teeth I could eat with. Do you know what he did? He gave me my $400 back and told me to go to another dentist.

I blindfolded myself and picked a name out of the phone book and guess what? I got me a dentist who made a perfect set of teeth---never had to go back for even one adjustment. What do you think of THAT, Ann Landers?---Nutty Al (My friends' nickname for me.)

Dear Al: Congratulations on your new teeth. And say hello to your friends for me. I think they've got you properly labeled.

Dear Ann Landers: I was engaged to Gert for three years--ring and all--when she ran off with a guy she had met only a week before. I thought I'd go out of my mind. Three months later she was in the hospital with a fractured skull. Her husband hit her with a baseball bat. She sent word she wanted to see me. When I went to see her I ran into her husband. He was visiting her, too. She told me she was going to give him another chance.

Last week she was back in the hospital with a broken shoulder. He hit her again. Now she wants me to go to him and talk about a divorce. I really love her, Ann. What should I do?---Undecided.

Dear Un: Leavy her alone. And leave HIM alone, too. If and when Gert is single, you might consider seeing her again. But not until.

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage--What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Two rolls of lace trellised down each side front of the gown from shoulder to hemline. Two petite ribbon bows, touched with a cluster of pearls, accented the front and back waistline. Ribbon was interlaced through the lace trim. The same trim was used for back trimming on the gown. Gathering at the waist formed back fullness.

Outlook Dim For Vietnamese If American Forces Withdraw

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Pvt. Nguyen Huu Dinh predicts defeat for the South Vietnamese army as he scavenges discarded ammunition at a U.S. Marine garbage dump near Marble Mountain.

"When the Americans leave, the Communists will take over," he mutters. "We cannot stop them. Why are the Americans leaving?"

Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai also has qualms as he surveys enemy infiltration routes in the mist-shrouded A Shau Valley from a hilltop called Firebase Holcomb.

"I need more B52 strikes, more helicopter support, more artillery, more people," he complains. "Yet you Americans want to take your GIs home."

Privates and generals alike feel uneasy in the 1st Military Region, the five northern provinces colloquially known as Eye—for the Roman I—Corps. No one likes sitting on a powder keg the size of Maryland.

Accelerated U.S. troop withdrawals, upcoming government elections, the end of the monsoon and 207 miles of common border with North Vietnam and enemy-controlled southern Laos made Eye Corps the likeliest target of a dry season offensive.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, the corps commander, feels the crunch will come in July and August. His generals and their U.S. advisers all agree on what to expect:

—Major battles involving thousands of troops in the mountainous border regions near Laos, with heavy enemy pressure on the first line of defense, a string of South Vietnamese artillery bases guarding traditional infiltration routes.

—Continuation of rocket attacks on Da Nang, which has been hit eight times since April 26.

—Shellings and harassing attacks against firebases along the demilitarized zone, but no large incursions across the buffer strip dividing North and South Vietnam.

—Increased terrorosim and Viet Cong political activity in the villages to prevent people from voting in the lower house election Aug. 29 and the presidential election Oct. 3.

Lam is convinced the Laotian invasion which he commanded earlier this year, known as Lam Son 719, so disrupted North Vietnamese supply lines that the enemy will be able to conduct only big-unit actions in the unpopulated border regions.

Intelligence officers say enemy strength in Eye Corps is at a peak of about 45,000 combat troops, consisting of 30,000 North Vietnamese regulars and about 15,000 in Viet Cong units.

Local guerrillas and Viet Cong political cadres add another 20,000 to 35,000 to this.

Grand Jury Investigates Top Secret Papers Leak

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal grand jury investigation has begun here into the leak of top secret Pentagon studies on how the United States became involved in the Vietnam war.

U.S. District Court on Wednesday granted immunity from prosecution to two persons subpoenaed to testify.

The Los Angeles Times identified the two as Anthony J. Russo, 34, a former employe of Rand Corp. of Santa Monica, Calif., and Linda Spinay.

Rand is the "think-tank" firm which was involved in the Defense Department studies. A former New York Times reporter has said onetime Rand employe Daniel Ellsberg gave copies of the study to The Times.

A Justice Department spokesman said the grand jury probe concerned possible violations of national security laws but declined elaboration. Paul C. Vincent, assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's Internal Security Division, has been in Los Angeles since Monday in connection with the probe.

Russo, a native of Suffolk, Va., who worked for Rand from 1964 to 1969, refused to testify before the jury Wednesday morning and the Justice Department immediately asked Judge William P. Gray to grant him immunity from prosecution.

Gray granted the request but Russo's attorney, Joseph A. Ball of Long Beach, Calif., said he wanted to present legal arguments challenging the immunity statute. A hearing was scheduled for Friday.

Later, the Justice Department asked the same grant of immunity for Miss Spinay and Gray approved the request. The woman, whose connection with the investigation was not immediately known, testified for about 15 minutes.

L.A. Times Publishes Secret Pentagon Paper

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Security Council rejected a recommendation by a State Department expert in 1963 that the United States should pull out of Vietnam because it could not win the war against the Communists, the Los Angeles Times reported Wednesday.

The newspaper said it learned that facet of the war in studying what it called previously unpublished sections of the secret Pentagon report on American involvement in Vietnam.

The newspaper said the recommendation was submitted by Paul M. Kattenburg, then head of the State Department's Vietnam Working Group.

Kattenburg's suggestion was overruled by Secretary of State Dean Rusk who reportedly viewed it as "speculative," the Times said.

The secretary of state was quoted as saying that "it would be far better for us to start on the firm basis of two things— that we will not pull out of Vietnam until the war is won, and that we will not run a coup."

Rusk, the newspaper added, was supported in his view by then Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

The report on the Security Council's session on the matter is contained in a memorandum written by Marine Lt. Gen. Victor C. Krulak, who was the Pentagon's top expert on counter-insurgency warfare, the Times said.

Bond Says Confidence Lost In Jeff City Leadership

WARRESNSBURG, Mo. (AP) — The merits of political parties were discussed Wednesday night when State Auditor Christopher Bond, a Republican, and Mayor Charles Wheeler of Kansas City, a Democrat, met before delegates to Missouri Boys State.

Bond charged the people of Missouri had "lost confidence in the capacity of the Democratic leadership in Jefferson City to govern the state."

Yablonski Followers Will Continue The Battle

CLARKSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A group of miners sat in a small taproom Wednesday night and recalled their friendships with insurgent mine leader Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, his murder a year and a half ago and the confession of a man charged in the case.

Yablonski, 59, his wife and daughter were found shot to death in their beds here Dec. 31, 1969, shortly after he lost an election for president of the 20,000-member United Mine Workers union to W. A. "Tony" Boyle.

Seat-stained miners, after laboring eight or more hours underground, talked about the slaying and Claude E. Vealey's courtroom confession a few hours earlier that he was one of three men who killed the Yablonski s.

None of those questioned expressed anger at Vealey.

"The people who put him up to it should pay. I don't see how you can put the whole blame on him. He wouldn't have done it on his own. The blame should go on the people who paid him," miner Emile Lepo said.

"If I had my way, I'd turn him over to the coal miners and they'd find out who was behind it," said George Smoggie, a steelworker.

Although the UMW offered a $50,000 reward for Yablonski's killers, some of the Clarksville miners said they wondered if someone in the union was not responsible.

"We don't think it goes all the way to the top but no matter what the decision is, we'll always wonder if it wasn't someone in the union," one miner said.

"He may be dead but he's not gone, we're still here," Nick Savage, a miner for 43 years, said. "I happen to be one of those rebels, one of his boys, one of the Miners for Democracy."

"For so long, the union has been so crooked, so powerful, the only hope any miner has was Jock Yablonski, and now he's dead," another miner, John Cherup said.

Yablonski's sons Kenneth and Joseph, both sat only a few feet from Vealey as his statement was read into the record by an FBI agent in the hushed Washington County courtroom.

Anguish gathered in the eyes of both as Vealey's words told of how he and his accomplices stalked Yablonski for months before the slayings, and of how they finally broke into his stately, flagstone home in nearby Clarksville and pumped bullet after bullet into their victims from bedroom doorways. The bodies were found Dec. 31, 1969.

In other developments:

—Security, though extremely tight during Vealey's courtroom appearance, decreased Wednesday night at the Washington County Jail, where Vealey was being held earlier in a specially constructed, closely guarded maximum security area. That led to speculation that he might have been transferred to another penal institution, but local authorities declined to answer inquiries.

—Elmer Brown, Yablonski's running mate in the latter's unsuccessful 1969 bid to unseat Boyle, said he believed there were more persons and more money involved in the slayings than Vealey indicated.

Vealey pleaded guilty to three counts of murder, one for each of the victims.

In return for the plea and his statement, federal and state officials agreed to drop several secondary charges against Vealey—among them counts of conspiracy, burglary, larceny, robbery and breaking and entering.

Under Pennsylvania law, another hearing will be held later to determine the degree of Vealey's guilt and his sentence. No date was set for that proceeding, and Sprague indicated it would be delayed until Vealey testified in the trials of the four others charged in the case.

If convicted of first-degree murder, Vealey could be sent to the electric chair or sentenced to life imprisonment. But if convicted of a lesser crime, the punishment would be left to the court—in this instance a special three-judge panel.

Junk Studies Can Be Really Suggestive

NEW YORK (AP) — "For U.S. entrepreneurs going to strange foreign countries, junk studies can be very suggestive. Junk tends to be a leading economic indicator," said the professor.

At first it appeared to be a joke. But as the story unfolded, the listener realized the professor had developed a system of junk analysis and that it actually could reveal the status of a nation's economy, and perhaps its future.

And there were all the credentials, as checked in an interview: Dr. Richard N. Farmer, 43, author of eight books, professor at the Graduate School of Business, Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.

"Most economic data is erroneous for reasons beyond the control of statisticians," he wrote in the international management magazine, "Worldwide Pand I planning." P is for project, I for industry.

In quest of knowledge, Farmer has romed the junkyards of at least 10 countries.

"Every country," he maintains, "is in at least one of fivelevel junk and trash development cycles," which he labels:

1. Nothing Gets Used. Mainly because the natives don't have to skill to make use of junk. Characteristic of primitive and remote tribes of desert nomads. Per capita income of less than $50 a year.

2. Everything Gets Used. Indicative of rudimentary skills in reusing old materials. Nothing is thrown away for good. Ingenuity develops. Autos are totally stripped. Per capita income up to $200.

3. Piling Up Phase. Low grade materials show up in junkyards and about the countryside: broken bottles, cement fragments, occasional tires, leaking bottles and autos almost, but not quite totally, stripped.

"Labor, particularly skilled labor, is being drawn off into more productive pursuits, so cars begin to have bits and pieces of hard to get things left on them." The junkyard "comes into its own."

4. The Age of Affluence. Usable trash accumulates. Lots of bottles, cans, tires, occasional abandoned cars. Useful stuff appears such as copper piping, two by fours, wire. Per capita income up to $1,200. Influential people talk about ecology. Trash no longer an asset but a costly burden.

5. Total Affluence. Per capita income up to $2,500 or more. Trash becomes a major public issue. Abandoned cars, throwaway containers, piles of paper become problems.

Proper analysis, says Farmer, can tell an awful lot about a country's wealth, skills, needs, initiative, morality, imagination and future.

"Instead of hanging around local luxury hotels, businessmen interested in what is really going on in a country should get out to see what's being done with the local junk.

Horror Films Now Find Public Favor

LONDON -- The Frankenstein-Dracula labs are booming these days. "Evil, sinister, brooding, the ruins of Karlstein castle stand dominating and ominous over the village of Styria," begins the synopsis of Lust for a Vampire. Indeed, with seven horror films now in production, London's Hammer Films can be credited for putting Transylvania back on the map.

Sir James Carreras, known affectionately in London as the Knight of Harror, is being honored for reviving the monsters and ghouls Hollywood had quietly laid to rest. Film critic Judith Crist has noted that the public has become consistently more demanding in its "pursuit of chilling thrills." Carreras is fully equal to the challenge.

Dr. Jekyll and Sister Hyde, a modern adaptation of Robert Louis Stevenson's famous novel, is now being readied for release. "We promise for the first time a sex change on screen," says Brian Clemens, the script writer. Clemens claims that the transition from man to woman is more terrifying than the previous man-to-man transformations of John Barrymore, Spencer Tracy or Fredric March.

Back in 1908 the Selig Polyscope Company of Chicago released the first Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. But the first really chilling films understandably came from Germany, claims Carlos Clarens in his book, Horror Movies. All ghouls come from such German classics as the Golem and The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari. When the Nazis took over, most of the talented directors left to enhance the horrors of the make-believe world of Hollywood.

Italian Power Now Flexes Its Muscles

By Editorial Research Reports

NEW YORK -- The second Columbus Circle Unity Day rally will be held Monday in New York City, with as many as 150,000 Italian -Americans expected to attend.

It took years for Negro civil rights groups to overturn laws and customs that deprived blacks of equal voting rights and employment opportunities, and access to desegregated schools. It took the Italian - American Civil Rights League less than a month to achieve one of its major objectives. Italian Power, long dormant, is now awake and on the march.

No fewer than 150,000 Italian - Americans and sympathizers are expected to march to Manhattan's Columbus Circle on June 28 for the second in what may turn out to be an annual series of rallies. The first rally, June 29, 1970, drew around 50,000 participants. They applauded hardest for Joseph Colombo, organizer of the IACRL and reputed head of one of New York's six Mafia "families."

It was the Mafia stigma that led Colombo and others to form the IACRL. Starting April 30, 1970, League members picketed the New York FBI office every night. They were protesting the bureau's alleged discrimination against Italian- Americans in its surveillance of underworld activities. Then, in July, Attorney General John N. Mitchell directed the Justice Department and the FBI to stop using the terms "Mafia'. and "Cosa Nostra" because they offended law -abiding citizens of Italian extraction.

Officials of the League, Nicholas Pileggi recently wrote, "have been astonished by their own success." More astonishing, however, is the fact that Italian Power did not make itself felt earlier. Ethnic - origin data from the 1970 U.S. census have not yet been released, but a special Census Bureau survey of November 1969 identified 7,239,000 Americans as of Italian descent.

Many Italian -Americans -- perhaps 90 per cent of those in New York City alone -- trace their ancestry to the impoverished southern provinces of Calabria, Apulia and Sicily. Natives of this bleak area, Pileggi asserted, "are burdened with a deadly regional Italian fatalism .... Mothers prepare their daughters for the worst, fathers advise their sons against aiming too high, and proverbs always tell of the unhappiness that awaits the overly ambitious."

Another reason why Italian -Americans have been slow to flex their muscles may be that the great wave of immigration from Italy did not begin until around 1890. By that time, immigrants from Germany and Ireland were well established and starting to move into positions of influence in politics.

Colombo's rise may be followed by an equally sudden fall. A week after charting the rise of Italian Power in New York, Pileggi added a postscript. A group of house painters, he reported, had roughed up Colombo and two or three League members in what appeared to be an ambush of sorts. Moreover, complaints were being heard that the League "never seemed to defend anyone but Colombo and that none of his peers seemed to be getting a cut of the $2 million his League had raised."

Still, the movement Colombo started continues to gather momentum. The League has enrolled more than 50,000 members to date and is signing up new ones at the rate of 1,000 a month. A 10-acre plot has been bought to house a nonprofit hospital with a narcotics center and a home for the aged. Plans are almost completed for a "unity train" to spread the League's message across the country. To paraphrase the World War I doubhboys' slogan , seven million Italian-Americans can't be wrong.

Three Die In Warrenton Accident

WARRENTON, Mo. (AP) — A Warrenton couple was killed and a Wentzville, Mo., man died later of injuries after their vehicles slammed into each other in a westbound lane of Interstate 70 late Tuesday night, the highway patrol said.

Ernest V. Yowell, 45, of Warrenton and his wife, Marcella, 42, were dead at the scene, the patrol said, after an eastbound pickup truck driven by Melvin L. Mennemeier, 36, of Wentzville entered the westbound lanes and hit their car headon.

Mennemeier died early today about three hours after the accident.

Taken to ST. Joseph hospital in Kirkwood, Mo., for treatment of injuries was the Yowell's daughter Linda Sue, 14.

A third vehicle involved in the collision was a westbound truck driven by Jimmy Penrod, 29, of St. Joseph, Mo. The patrol said the truck also struck the Yowell car. Penrod was not injured.

Teachers to Spend Weekend At Retreat

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Nineteen men of the faculty and staff of Southeast Missuri State College will depart Friday for a weekend retreat at Bunker Hill Ranch Resort in Mountain View. They will return Sunday afternoon.

A summer retreat at the resort, which is owned and operated by the Missouri State Teachers' Association, is somewhat of a tradition at Southeast Missouri State.

Its purpose is recreation and fellowship, said Dr. David A. Strand, adding that the resort on the Jacks Forks River has excellent facilities for fishing, swimming, an canoeing.

However, Dr. Strand, dean of the college and coordinator of the retreat, also noted that the conversation often turns to serious subjects.

"The retreat provides an opportunity for people on the faculty to get together and discuss items of mutual concern relative to their work at the college or their responsibilities as educators," he said.

Faculty and staff members who will attend the retreat are, besides Dr. Strand, Dr. Lawrence Bahn and Dr. Ronald Popham of the chemistry department; Dr. John Bierk and Dr. H. O. Grauel of the English department; C. C. Bonwell, Dr. Harold Dugger, and Gene Ramsey of the history department; Robert Bruns and Dr. Harold Hager of the mathematics department; Dr. Harley Rutledge, Milton Ueleke, and Dr. Hsin -I-Wu of the physics department; James Stuart and Harold Weber of the business department; Dr. Robert Kuster off the biology department; Dr. Gerald Giesler of the social science department; Burwell Fox, retired physics professor; and Carroll Walker, dean of students.

That's The Law

Smokey Sky Rides Allowed

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

When smoke got in his eyes, Horace wasn't thinking of the lyrics of a song written by Jerome Kern. He was thinking of the discomfort he suffered when the "Smoking Permitted" signs were lit on commercial airlines. Consequently, he and several other nonsmokers instituted proceedings to compel the Federal Aviation Administrator to ban smoking on the High and the Mighty.

"Under the law," they argued, "the Administrator is required to order air carriers to perform their services with the highest possible degree of safety and public interest. Smoking on planes creates a fire hazard, is deleterious to the health of nonsmoking passengers, is an annoyance and discomfort to nonsmoking passengers and causes a possible distraction to and a reduction in the crew's mental and visual alertness. Therefore, smoking on commercial planes should be banned immediately as a safety measure."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the no-smoking signs up permanently on commercial planes?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that people have been smoking on planes for a long time without any indication that it creates a fire hazard. Nor is their any evidence that smoking of crew members reduces the level of safety on planes. Lastly, noted the judge, millions of passengers have enjoyed the freedom to smoke since the advent of commercial aviation. And, as foolish as this freedom may seem to others, he pointed out, and while it may be annoying and a discomfort to nonsmokers, it appears not to affect the safety of the flight so as to require the Federal Aviation Administrator to effect the sought-after ban.

(Based upon a 1971 United States Court of Appeals Decision).

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Come, see a man, who told me all things that ever I did: can this be the Christ? (John 4:29, ASV)

PRAYER: Lord, so speak to me that I may be able to speak of Thee to others. May my lips and life proclaim the glorious gospel of Thy redeeming grace. In Jesus' name I pray. Amen.

If you ask a kid what he wants to be when he grows up, it's probably not YOU.

Open House at Indian Site

LILBOURN— An open house at the New Madrid county site of an ancient Indian city has been scheduled for Saturday and Sunday according to the newly formed Southeast Missouri Archaeological Society.

Visitors may inspect the excavations, and to talk to archaeologists from the University of Missouri, who are conducting the research. Among them are Dr. Carl Chapman, professor of anthropology at the University of Missouri in Columbia, and David R. Evans, director of the state archaeological Survey.

The Society will also have available at the site free copies of a preliminary report on the findings.

The Lilbourn site contains the remains of a fortified town built by Mississippian people about A.D. to 1400. It contains 11 mounds, a plaza area, an area for dwellings, and several small cemetery areas.

A preview of the open house will take the form of an interview and on-site films, to be shown on the Channel 12 Breakfast Show at 6:45 p.m. Saturday, June 26. Dr. Chapman will be the speaker. A half-hour program on the Lilboun site is also being prepared by WPSD-TV, Paducah, and will be scheduled in the near future on the Wednesday night "Accent" program.

Members of the SEMO Archaeological Society are engaged in a campaign to raise funds for further research at the Lilbourn site. Historical information contained there will soon be lost forever by site preparation for a new vocational-technical school.

Persons interested in contributing to the fund may do so by sending a tax-deductible check to the SEMO Archaeological Society, c/0 Miss Harryette Campbellm, 812 Davis Blvd., Sikeston.

Funds Freeze Question

KANSES CITY (AP) — A federal court in Kansas City gets the question today of whether the Nixon administration can legally freeze more than $26-million in Missouri highway funds — an action taken last year to help slow inflation.

Judge William H. Becker has ordered John A. Volpe, secretary of transportation, and George P. Shultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget, to appear to answer questions about the freezing of funds allotted to the Missouri Highway Commission. 5 80ajjnb' L. Hyder, commission chief counsel, says a 1968 congressional act prohibits the withholding of federal money for any reason except insufficient money in the source fund.

Joseph Bruening of Kansas City, a commiss7.n member, said he would be very surprised if Volpe and Shultz show up for today's court hearing.

By being board chairman, he is automatically mayor and police judge.

"I didn't run to clear up anything in particular," he explained. "Nor did I run to tear down anything already standing. I didn't even campaign.

"I'd say the most responsibility I feel is in being judge. I've bought a set of state statutes and been doing some heavy readin'."

"I've been well pleased," he said. "I've had a lot of cooperation. Everyone who has been asked to serve on a committee and so forth, has accepted."

When asked what improvements he plans to make in Miner's future, he plunged in.

"We've planned a town meeting for June 29 for all the townspeople to express their ideas and desires. The Bootheel Regional Planning Commission has made an extensive study of our needs and status, and the reports are available to anyone at the town office."

The Sadlers have been active in Church. He has taught Sunday school classes at First Baptist Church eight years, first teaching junior boys and now young adult men.

"It fills a need," he said, "a need we all have, for a lot of growth and maturing as Christians. I guess teaching this class (young adults) represents the greatest challenge. I've always liked people and I like to know what motivates them."

His own motivation?

"Family," he answered softly, "I would suppose – not money. That isn't happiness. Financial security isn't the answer either.

"Lots of people let challenges of the day and confusion overshadow their mainstay – some don't even know what their mainstay is."

Sadler's daughter, Sharon, is 16, Kenneth is 14, and Mike is nine. The three were born and reared in Sikeston.

"How have your philosophies about life influenced your children?" I asked.

"I think our kids are terrific," he answered. "We have a fine family home life and relationship. You have to influence your kids by your every day lives. I don't demand yes Ma'm's and no ma'm's..... just consideration and respect for those around them. I do try to know where they are and what they're doing and I try to influence what they do."

The conversation slowed for a moment and he said thoughtfully, "You know, in talking to my Sunday school class and others, I find that one reason it's so hard to relate to church-going people is 'cause sometimes as church people, we are no different."

Sadler's hobbies are woodworking, farming and raising livestock. He owns a partnership with Dr. Wendell Weathers in 220 acres of farm land near Puxico. They raise thoroughbred horses and cattle.

"We don't make money," he joked, "but we have a lot of fun!"

He has a large basement workship where he did custom picture framing until he injured his back. His pet project was the addition of a large bedroom to the house. Handsomely decorated in black leather, massive furniture and a red carpet, the room has been dubbed the "judge's chambers." It is complete with a remote control television set.

Sadler's wife, Peggy, raises horses as a hobby and began breaking registered quarter horses. She started riding in shows six years ago, and along with youngest son, Mike, boasts a basketful of ribbons.

Sadler describes her as "dedicated, always there and willing to aid the family in any way. She loves horses, never sees an ugly one."

About his children,

"I don't intend to choose a career for them," he said, "if that 's what you mean. I hope they are prepared to choose and think through something they will be happy with."

"How is the mayor business?" I asked in conclusion.

"Well," he answered, drawling lazily on his pipe, "there's more to it than I expected. Take yesterday, for example. A man moved a house into town without a permit, a dog got stuck in tar alongside the railroad tracks – I expected some really bad publicity from that – and we had to get an electrician to repair a switch at the water plant. Just things like that...problems you don't think about if your're not concerned."

That's the kind of man who is mayor of Miner — concerned.

Reds Scouting Supervisor Chet Montgomery will oversee the tryout which is scheduled from 10 a.m. -3 p.m. at Harmon Field.

Montgomery will be assisted by scouts Bob Jamison, Bill Bradshaw and Cluster Williams.

All eligible players are requested to furnish their own personal gear -- shoes uniforms gloves. The Reds will provide bats and baseballs.

Terry Scudder

Scudder Tops Navy Softball

Specialist third class Terry Scudder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scudder, is playing fast pitch softball in the Navys' Special Services Team.

Terry fills the left field position and is leading the league in home runs and runs batted in , in this League, which has a 90-game schedule in the East with its' home base, Little Creek, Va.

The team, which has a record of 20 wins and six losses, hopes to be major contender, when the Navys' World Series is played in Memphis in August.

Scudder is a 1967 graduate of Sikeston high school, where he lettered in football, baseball, and track for 3 years, and also was a member of the 1967 Connie Mack World Series team that journeyed to Lamar, Col., and Farmington, N.M., and battled their way to the finals.

Terry has been in the navy almost four years.

Powell cracked two home runs and a single Wednesday night, pacing the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-5 victory and finally bringing his batting average over the .200 mark.

Odom, the Oakland blazer who missed the first month of the season following elbow surgery, shut out Minnesota for 7 2-3 innings and beat the Twins 8-3 with relief help in the ninth to square his pitching record at 3-3.

And, in an afternoon game, the White Sox continued to apply their newfound sock, walloping Kansas City 12-3 for their fourth straight triumph and a 46-run total during the winning streak.

Elsewhere in the American League, the New York Yankees nipped Detroit 6-5 on Gene Michael's 13th inning homer; Boston edged Cleveland 2-1 on a homer by Joe Lahoud and Milwaukee split a doubleheader with California, winning 6-0 and then bowing 9-5.

In National League play, Philadelphia downed Cincinnati 4-0 on Rick Wise's no-hitter; Pittsburgh bounced the New York Mets 6-2; San Francisco beat the Chicago Cubs 5-2; Montreal topped Atlanta 6-3; St. Louis took Los Angeles 3-1 in 10 innings and San Diego swept a pair from Houston 2-3 in 12 innings and 4-3.

Powell, the American League's most valuable player last season, took a .178 average into Washington Monday night but has boosted it 31 points to .209 after drilling nine hits, for eight RBI, in the three games in which he has batted.

His 10th and 11th homers accounted for three Baltimore runs Wednesday night, helping Jim Palmer gain his 10th victory with ninth inning relief help.

Odom, who had failed to last seven innings in six previous starts since coming off the disabled list, blanked the Twins on three hits until Harmon Killebrew singled and Rich Reese homered with two out in the eighth. Ron Perranoski replaced Odom after Leo Cardenas' leadoff homer in the ninth.

Rick Monday drove in three runs with a double and single and Curt Blefary homered to trigger the Oakland attack.

The White Sox, who had lost six one-run games on a frustrating road trip, turned the corner last Sunday at Minnesota by pasting the Twins 18-8. Then they returned to Chicago and beat Kansas City 5-1 and 11-6 in the first two games of their three-game set.

In the series finale, Bill Melton belted his 14th homer of the season; Tom Egan delivered three runs with a pair of doubles and Luis Alvarado had three hits and two RBI to back the six-hit pitching of knuckleballer Wilbur Wood.

The Yankees blew a 5-0 ninth inning lead before taming the Tigers on Michael's first homer of the season—a drive that tipped off the left foul pole with one out in the 13th.

Lahoud's seventh inning homer at Boston decided a pitching duel between winner Ray Culp, who flipped a fivehitter, and Cleveland's Sam McDowell, who also yielded five hits and struck out 14.

McDowell stroked a run-scoring single in the second inning, but the Red Sox tied it in the sixth on Billy Conigliaro's runscoring triple.

But the Angels struck back in the second game with an 18-hit assault to give first-time starter Eddie Fisher his sixth victory in 10 decisions. Syd O'Brien, Sandy Alomar, Alex Johnson and Ken McMullen each had three hits for California.

National League

Kiwanis blasted two home runs and scored three runs in the last inning to defeat Lions, 4-0, in the first National League baseball game last night.

The nightcap between the Pizza Inn and Jaycees turned out to be an equally close contest. The Jaycees picked up one run in each of the last four innings to defeat Pizza Inn, 4-3.

Crouch and Silverthorn belted home runs for Kiwanis in the night's opener. McCormick collected two of the team's seven hits. Kiwanis scored one run in the first inning, than added the three final runs. Crouch's leadoff home run opened the last inning while Silverthorn collected his two runs batted in with two out in the inning.

Butler was on the mound for Kiwanis and collected the two-hit win.

Brashears, Medelberg, and Watkins collected Lion's only three hits. Watkins and Griffin teamed on the mound for Lions with Watkins receiving the loss.

In the final four innings in the second game, walks and key singles moved four runs across for the Jaycees. One run came in each of the final innings, as the Pizza Inn lost their 3-0 lead held in the fourth inning.

Cross and Couch belted doubles for the Pizza Inn, two of their team's three hits. Couch and Chaney worked the mound for the Inn, and Chaney was the loosing hurler.

Cloud, Keller, Burton, and Vogel ripped the Jaycee's four hits in the contest. Cloud was the winning hurler. Scoring:

Wise No-Hits Reds

Seven years ago Rick Wise watched Jim Bunning pitch a perfect game, then went out and recorded his first major league victory. On Wednesday night, Wise came within one batter of duplicating Bunning's incredible feat.

"I was well aware of the situation all the way," Wise said after he fired a no-hitter against the Cincinnati Reds—the second in three weeks suffered by the beleaguered National League Champions—and led the 4-0 triumph with a pair of home runs.

Wise faced just one batter more than the minimum 27, retiring the first 16 he faced, surrendering a one-out walk to Dave Concepcion in the sixth, then setting down the remaining 11 Reds.

"The crowd really encouraged me," Wise said of the 13,329 Cincinnati fans who began rotting loudly for him in the seventh inning and, by the ninth, were booing every ball and cheering every strike.

Wednesday night's victory was his 66th triumph for the Phils and his eighth in 12 decisions this year.

In other National League night action, Pittsburgh whipped the Mets 6-2, Montreal clipped Atlanta 6-3, St. glouis topped Los Angeles 3-1 in 10 innings, San Francisco flipped the Cubs 5-2 in an afternoon game and, in a two-night doubleheader, San Diego edged Houston 3-2 in a 12-inning opener, then made it a sweep with a 4-3 nightcap triumph.

In the American League Boston squeezed by Cleveland 2-1 and the Chicago White Sox bombed Kansas City 12-3 in day games, Milwaukee split a twinight bill with California, winning 6-0 then losing 9-5 and, in night action, Oakland shelled Minnesota 8-3, Baltimore topped Washington 7-5 and the New York Yankees beat Detroit 6-5 in 13 innings.

Roger Freed's second-inning grounder gave Wise the only run he needed, driving in Joe Lis who had been hit by a pitch and moved to third on Willie Montanez' double.

Then, getting back to his pitching, he admitted: "I wasn't feeling good when I warmed up." But after changing sweatshirts three times in the hot, humid night, then discarding them completely after the sixth inning, "I started feeling stronger.

"I went to just three pitches," he said, "My fast ball, my slider and my curve."

The Pirates, regaining their 4½-game lead over New York in the National League East, were paced by Willie Stargell's three-run homer in the first inning and RBI double in the second. His 26 homers and 72 RBI lead the majors. Cleon Jones had a homer for the Mets.

Rusty Staub led the Expos' triumph with two singles that knocked in three runs and Bob Bailey chipped in with his eighth homer while Darrell Evans drilled a two-run shot for the Braves.

The Cardinals, limited to one hit through seven innings by Dodgers' starter Don Sutton, tied the game 1-1 in the eighth, then won it in the 10th on runscoring singles by Lou Brock and Joe Torre off reliever Jim Brewer.

Ken Henderson of the Giants snapped a 2-2 tie with a leadoff homer in the eighth and Juan Marichal, en route to his 10th victory, added a two-run blast later in the innings to wip Chicago.

In the second game, Angel Bravo, who had sent the first contest into extra innings with a pinch double, delivered another one that scored Dave Campbell with the winning run. Reliever Bob Miller, 5-2, got the victory in each game.

Pitcher Does It All

CINCINNATI (AP) — Everybody in the Philadelphia Phillies dugout freely talked about it as Rick Wise pitched a no hitter against the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday night 4-0, except manager Frank Lucchesi.

"It's a lot of nonsense about not talking about it," said catcher Tim McCarver. "We discussed it openly in the dugout. I talked about it every inning with Bob Doyle. I even said a few things about it to Lucchesi but he didn't answer."

"I didn't move for about five innings and I'll admit it," said Lucchesi. "I'm superstitious!

"All I could say, and I must have said it 50 or 100 times, 'come on Rick.' I figured the man upstairs was helping him but he's a real nonchalant guy. He's a real good thrower. I've seen him throw harder but he's really maturing. He's my most consistant pitcher."

"This has to be the biggest thrill of my life," said Wise (84). He also blasted two home runs bringing in three of the four runs.

"I feel this is my second nohitter," said the 195, 6-foot-2 native of Jackson, Mich.

He said his one-hitter against the Dodgers in Los Angeles, Aug. 8, 1968, should have been the first. He complained that an official scorer gave Jeff Torberg a hit when Orlando Penna bobbled a grounder in the third inning.

"I still consider that a no-hitter in my book," Wise said.

Parma Tops Dexter, 12-4

PARMA -- Doyle Crews and John McCulloch scattered three hits while Wilson Strong and Larry McClung led a 11-hit attack as the Independents racked Dexter, 12-4, Wednesday night.

Crews picked up the victory, going six innings and giving up two hits. McCulloch stopped the visitors on a single run in the final two innings.

Strong belted two homers to head the Parma assault, scoring three times and going three for four at the plate. McClung had three safeties in four trips. Jerry White was one for two, scoring three times.

Parma will be host to Sikeston Sunday at 2 p.m. in a league game.

Franchise Shift

Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Pro basketball is returning to Houston for another try—and this time it will have hometown hero Elvin Hayes going for it.

The Big E. and the rest of the San Diego Rockets are now the Houston Rockets via sale of the franchise Wednesday night to a group which will operate it in the Texas city beginning right away.

Announcement of the shift was made by NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy at a hastily called news conference during the league's annual board of governors' meetings. He said the sale price was $5.6 million.

Kennedy said the Houston group is headed by Wayne Duddlesten, a real estate broker, and Billy Goldberg, a banker.

Cards Survive 10-Inning Battle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pitching 14 innings without giving up a run isn't much of a feat unless it happens in relief, in the last inning or two of a tough game. Then it's indeed impressive.

That's what Los Angeles' Jim Brewer had pieced together in 10 games but it came to a shattering halt in the 10th inning Wednesday night at Dodger Stadium.

St. Louis bounced him for two runs in the 10th inning en route to 3-1 victory which spoiled another sparkling pitching performance by the Dodgers' Don Sutton.

The Cardinals were the last team to score on Brewer, more than a month ago on May 18 in St. Louis, and they handed him his second loss of the season Wednesday evening.

"Jim Brewer is the best reliever in baseball," praised St. Louis' Lou Brock after Wednesday's game. Brock was the man who drove home the tiebreaking run in the Cards' tworun 10th.

It was the Cardinals' twin superstars—brock and Joe Torre—who singled home the two runs which defeated the Dodgers and dropped them 8½ games behind San Francisco in the National League West.

Brock's average now is .337 yet he just laughs about the prospect of wnn a batting title.

"We're a different club this year than last season," he said.

"Last year we were waiting for the long ball all the time. Not this year. We've got guys who can hit all through the lineup. Now we're hitting and running and doing just about everything."

For seven innings Wednesday night the Cards were restricted to an infield single by Matty Alou as Sutton followed his onehitter the previous outing with another near flawless performance.

He surrendered the second hit in the eighth inning, a pinch double by Jim Beauchamp who wound up scoring the tying run on a sacrifice fly by Jose Cardenal.

Luis Melendez opened the 10th with a pinch single and scored on a single by Brock. Torre singled home Alou who was aboard with his third single of the evening.

Royals Slump

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City Royals stayed in their slump in Chicago, while the St. Louis Cardinals are on their way back as they stopped the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 in Los Angeles.

Lou Brock and Joe Torre drilled run-scoring singles in the tenth inning to spark the Cards to a come-from-behind victory over the dodgers. It was the Cards second victory in a row over the west coast team and strengthtens their hold on third place in the National League East.

The White Sox rolled to their three-game sweep over Kansas City with a 12-3 margin. It didn't look that way early, as the Royals pulled to a 2-2 tie in the third inning.

But starter Paul Splittorff gave up three mor4 in the third and one in the fourth. He was replaced by Dick Drago, the club's No. 1 starter. Drago faced Bill Melton, the last man he pitched to in the previous night's rout. Just as on Tuesday, Melton connected with a home run; and things steadily went from bad to worse for the Royals.

The Royals head for Omaha, where they play a 7 p.m. exhibition game against their Triple-A farm club. They then move to Oakland and a fourgame weekend series.

St. Louis closes its LA series with a 3 p.m. game today. Reggie Cleveland (6-6) will be on the mound for St. Louis, facing Al Downing (7-4).

Mutual Fund Performance Gives Wall Street Heartburn

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON -- If the mutual fund industry zigs when it should have zagged, it creates heartburn or worse on Wall Street. That's what happened on June 18 in the wake of the announcement that mutual fund shareholders cashed in more shares than were purchased in May for the first time in the industry's 30-year history. The news helped shave 17 points off the Dow -Jones Industrial Average for the day, and dimmed prospects for a traditional summer rally on Wall Street.

As mutual funds go, so goes the market. By sitting on their $53.6 billion in assets and refusing to trade stocks in any great volume, the funds can put heavy downward pressure on average stock prices. Conversely, when they reach a consensus to buy in volume -- as they have for most of the last year -- their purchasing power can touch off a bull market.

The worrisome aspect of the May sales - redemption ratio lies in the fear that a continuation of the trend will force the mutual funds to sell stocks from their portfolios to meet the cash demands. A forced sale of stock would be bad news for the market.

Mutual funds, pension and endowment funds, and insurance companies form what are known as institutions. Their power to set the tone for the stock market is nearly absolute. The pseudonymous Adam Smith catches some of their mystique in The Money Game (1968):

"There is a They out there in in the market . . . Who are They? Well, They are the people who move stocks. They get the information first, maybe. They even create the information, and They are about to put the stock up or down. They are mysterious, anonymous, powerful and They know everything. Nothing fazes Them. They are the powers of the marketplace."

The charisma faded in the late 1960s after go - go fund managers gleefully discarded many of the old investment guidelines in the headlong rush for flashy "performance." For a while, the smaller aggressive funds with an accent on action and growth rather than safety out - per formed the stock market as a whole. But the gun - slingers' in -an -out trading of glamor stocks contributed to -- perhaps brought on -- the Great Bear Market of 1969-70. Then the most aggressive funds suffered the most.

The so-called cult of performance may have undermined the very structure of mutual funds. In a belated reaction, Congress last year enacted the first substantial changes in the regulation of mutual funds in 30 years. Broad regulatory authority over mutual funds limited their sales charges and cuurbed certain questionable practices of the industry.

But it has not been easy to restore public confidence. Some of the 5.5 million Americans who own shares in mutual funds may have decided last month to bail out, figuring that the funds had run the market up as far as it could go for the near future. Memories are sharp of how the money managers took them on a downhill ride two years ago.

"Redemptions, like sales, are linked to the bear market and this is its aftermath," commented the Investment Company Institute in releasing the May figures. The institute noted hopefully that several large fund members have reported their June sales are up from May, and said that "economic upturns following past recessions typically have brought new highs in fund sales." On Wall Street, they're praying the Institute is right because without fresh flows of money the market is dead.

Three Rivers Posts Gain in Enrollment

POPLAR BLUFF--On-campus enrollment in the current summer session of Three Rivers Junior College totaled 298 at the end of the second week, a slight gain over last year's figure of 296.

The most significant gain noted in this summer session was an increase of 30 in the day academic program. The figure this year is 213, as against 183 for last year.

The total enrollment for the summer session last year was 311, including 15 members of an extension class at Van Buren which began in the spring. This year's total enrollment will increase by at least 31 to a total of 329 on July 1, when an adult vocational agriculture program opens in Piedmont with 25 students and six additional students will enroll in an adult vocational agriculture program under way on the Poplar Bluff campus.

The adult vocational agriculture program here and at Piedmont is being limited at the outset to veterans eligible for benefits under the GI bill. Later adult programs of continuing education in agriculture will be open to non-veterans.

Wisconsin Welfare Rolls At 'Crisis Proportions'

Wisconsin spent $101,532,000 on 113,822 welfare recipients in fiscal 1964-65. The state spent $287,046,000 on 173,853 recipients in fiscal 1969-70.

The situation, says the assistant director of the Health and Social Services Department, has reached "crisis proportions."

The statistics in Wisconsin's case explain why welfare programs in many states around the country are being closely reviewed in an effort to halt spiraling costs.

State legislatures have proposed adding residency requirements for welfare recipients; others have proposed public works programs for able bodied persons on relief rolls; others have instituted administrative reforms. Others, as in Wisconsin's case, are seeking to shift much—if not all—of the welfare responsibility to the federal government.

An Associated Press survey showed about half the states considered some sort of welfare reform during the 1971 legislative session. Nine states passed laws to tighten regulations; similar measures are pending in six other states. Four states made administrative reforms to save money. And four states—Utah, Nebraska, Indiana and Georgia—liberalized existing laws.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York proposed and the state legislature approved a welfare reform package that included establishment of a oneyear residency requirement.

The U.S. Supreme Court, in a 1969 ruling involving Connecticut, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, invalidated such residency requirements.

Rockefeller noted, however, that the decision said the states could impose such a law "only for compelling reasons," and in announcing his program he said, "Believe me ... we've got compelling reasons."

Several other states have followed Rockefeller's lead. Hawaii established a one-year residency requirement to cope with what officials called "the inundation of transients who have been flocking to our shores in each of the nearest social service office."

Other states considering such laws—either as a total solution or as part of a larger reform package—included Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio, California and Rhode Island.

Connecticut, involved in the original Supreme Court ruling, considered a proposal for a residency requirement. The measure died but Gov. Thomas J. Meskill has asked legislators to reconsider the measure during a special session.

Also under consideration in many areas is creation of public works programs, designed to provide jobs and improve the community.

Pipe Bomb In Purse Fails to Go

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A pipe bomb hidden in a purse failed to go off at a crowded City Council meeting Monday night and was removed by police after about 400 persons had been evacuated.

Police said later that the device, discovered after an anonymous caller warned that it was set to explode at 9 p.m., couldn't have gone off because it lacked a blasting cap.

The bomb had a time device set for 9 p.m. but it had stopped at 8:10, officials said.

Mayor Ron James ordered the council chambers emptied of a standing-room-only crowd drawn by a debate on a controversial mobile housing development rezoning proposal. It took until 9:10 p.m. to clear everyone.

It was not known who left the purse.

Horse Industry Threatened With Spread of Disease

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP)—The Lower Rio Grande Valley may become a battleground in the fight to stop the northward spread of a horse disease which threatens the horse industry in the United States.

A task force of animal and human health authorities, both state and federal, began assembling at Harlingen Tuesday to formulate plans to halt the spread of Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis Vee.

Although no case of the disease has been confirmed in the United States, there has been a confirmed case within 200 miles of the Texas-Mexico border near Tampico, officials said. Another case, described as "clincially observed," but not confirmed, has been noted within 50 miles of the border. This case was reported between San Fernando and San Teresa, Mexico, in Northern Tamualipas state.

Agencies represented in the task force being assumbled at Harlingen were the Texas Animal Health Commission, U. S. Agriculture Department, Texas Health Department, and the U.S. Public Health Service.One portion of the plan to combat the disease would call for aerial spraying for mosquitoes, the main carrier of the disease. Other plans call for working with county agents and local veterinarians in spreading information about the disease. Local veterinarians would also be asked to watch for symptoms of the disease which is a form of "sleeping sickness." The disease can spread to humans, but it is not as serious.

The spread of the disease from South and Central America to Southern Mexi c last year resulted in the death ob about 6,000 horses.

British Claims Defector Unimportant

LONDON (AP) — Some British security authorities said Tuesday that Soviet defector Anatoly Fedoseyev is a comparatively unimportant electronics engineer and not the key space scientist he was reported to be.

Other sources said Fedoseyev was an important Soviet official, but the British government wanted to play down his defection to minimize its effect on relations between the major Western nations and the Soviet Union.

"Just What Goes On?" asked the Daily Express in a banner headline.

Fedoseyev defected May 27 during the Paris Air Show, where he was deputy chief of the Soviet delegation. The British government announced Sunday that he had been given permission to stay in Britain, and there were reports that he was the brains behind the Soyuz space station program and the robot moon exploration program.

Soviet Ambassador Mikhail N. Smirnovsky demanded Monday night that the Foreign Office allow a member of his staff to interview Fedoseyev. This appeared to indicate that the man was more than a minor official.

The Foreign Office said it would relay the demand to Fedoseyev. But Undersecretary Sir Denis Greenhill told Smirnovsky that Fedoseyev was free to contact the embassy anytime he wanted to.

The government had the 52year-old defector under guard somewhere in the London area and was reported still questioning him.

The Guardian newspaper said intelligence sources told it "the man was proving of positive value" and the interrogation "is far from complete."

"It was understood that unofficial approaches have been made for permission for American specialists and agents to meet him," The Guardian said.

Organizers of a scientific symposium at Cambridge University said they had no idea whether Fedoseyev's defection had caused the cancellation of an appearance by four Hungarian nuclear scientists at the symposium this week.

Three of the scientists telegraphed last Friday that they could not come because of "financial difficulties." The fourth withdrew two weeks ago, after Fedoseyev disappeared from his Paris hotel.

Vacationers Need to Check Inuurance

BALTIMORE – If you're the average American family vacation time is bearing down on you. But before taking off for the mountains or seashore, a check of insurance coverage for your own protection is a must.

An initial check of your auto insurance may be both revealing and a bit frightening. Many car owners, while well aware that they are insured, have little understanding of the amounts of protection their policy affords them. Far too many drivers obtain the minimum amount of insurance required by state law, which often is a policy with $10,000/ $20,000/ $5,000 limits. What these figures mean are that the individual is covered up to $10,000 for injuries to any one person, a maximum of $20,000 for all injuries resulting from one auto accident, and $5000 maximum for damage to property.

These limits may fulfill the requirements for a particular state's law, but they are often inadequate in today.s world of inflated claim settlements. For only a few more dollars, liability coverage can be doubled. The basic 1-/20/5 coverages also fail to meet liability coverages in several of the states through which you might travel.

A good example is California where basic limits are $15,000/ $30,000/ $5000. Should you become involved in an accident in California that results in an injury or death, you can have your car impounded if you lack the required coverage and are unable to post a bond.

Another check for traveling motorists, is to be sure all people driving your vehicle are of legal age to drive in the state through which you are passing. Most states permit driving at the age 16, however there are others where a special permit is needed to operate a car under the age of 18. New York is one example. A driver there under 18 must have a junior drivers permit that has been issued by the state.

If driving in Canada, the U.S. motorist is covered by his auto insurance policy in the provinces of Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta. In all other provinces however, he needs a statement of financial responsibility from his insurance company. Driving in Mexico can be a complicated affair, especially if an accident occurs. Check with your agent before taking your vehicle across the border.

Homeowners policies are another area of concern and possible benefit for the vacationer. Most homes are underinsured, having never been revalued since their purchase. Cases of theft and burglary often occur when the family is away for weeks at a time. Be sure you are fully covered for the contents of your home. There have been cases where homes have been completely vandalized during a family's absence. To your benefit, thefts occuring to property which you take with you on a trip, usually are covered by your homeowners policy. The limit on this type of coverage is up to 10 percent of the contents coverage on your home. There is a limit on the amount of coverage extended to jewelry, cameras, furs and other valuables. Additional coverage for these items can usually be purchased at the rate of a few dollars premium per $100 of protection.

With camping being the rage that it is, a trailer may well be part of your vacation caravan. Check carefully on your automobile policy's coverage of any towed vehicle. Often they will include coverage of a trailer, but only on a limited basis.

HAMSTER DOCTOR

QUESTION; I want to give my hamster some vitamins and things to keep him well. How do I go about treating these animals? (Virginia Stanley, Canton, Ohio)

Dear Virginis, Lucky for you hamsters do not get sick very often. Most of the commercial laboratory animal feeds have ample vitamins and minerals mixed in their rations. Animals with a low vitamin condition will not gain headway from these rations, so additions must be made. A drop or two of any good human liquid vitamin in the drinkingwater each day will do. Vitamin C must be added from time to time. A drop or two of lemon juice every day also is good. Liquid vitamins may be added to bread crust to fool those animals who don't like their water adulterated. Hamsters get colds from exposure. This means sunlight exposure and a limited amount of handling. Do not attempt to poke drugs down the throat of your pets. This will surely upset their digestion. Check the teeth from time to time. long incisor and impacted molar teeth will stop their eating. Your veterinarian should see your hamster once a year for a complete physical examination. (You may send your questions to Dr. Eagle, P O. Box 1042, Columbia, Mo 65201)

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1948, the Soviet Union bloackaded all land traffic between Berlin and West Germany. The next day American and British planes began to supply the city in a gigantic airlift that lasted 321 days.

On this date:

In 1497, John Cabot sighted the North American mainland, between Halifax, Nova Scotia, and southern Labrador. The discovery of the mainland was the first recorded.

In 1520, the Spanish conqueror of Mexico, Hernando Cortez, entered Mexico City.

In 1793, the first Republican constitution in France was adopted.

In 1940, in World War II, the French government of Marshal Petain signed an armistice with Italy.

In 1942, the Dutch royal family, in exile since the Nazi occupation of the Netherlands, arrived in the United States to establish temporary residence. In 1944 U.S. troops fighting in France were closing in on the city of Cherbourg.

Ten years ago: Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said a new economic program he was launching would make the Soviet Union the richest country in the world.

Six-Fold Increase in Drug Treatment Centers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration announced Tuesday a six-fold increase in its drug treatment centers in line with President Nixon's order to tackle the drug addiction problem among Vietnam veterans.

VA Administrator Donald E. Johnson said 14 more centers will be opened next month and an additional 13 created by next Oct. 1. The VA noew has five specialized drug treatment centers in operation.

The announcement followed a Pentagon estimate that 10 per cent, or about 25,000, of the U.S. troops in Vietnam are believed to use heroin, with approximately half estimated to be addicts.

Raising the VA drug centers to 32, Johnson said, will permit the annual care of an estimated 6,000 veteran-addicts in addition to veterans already receiving drug treatment in regular VA hospitals.

The first VA center opened last October here in Washington, Similar centers were activated last January in New York City, Houston, Tex., Battle Creek, Mich., and Sepulveda, Calif.

The 14 new drug centers scheduled to be opened formally next month will be located in Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo, N.Y., Syracuse, N.Y., Salem, Va., Miami, Fla., Oklahoma City, Minneapolis, Brecksville, Ohio, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Pa., Iowa City, Iowa, Palo Alto, Calif. and Salt Lake City.

The 13 additional centers planned before Oct. 1 will be at East Orange, N.J., Philadelphia, Atlanta, New Orleans, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Vancouver, Wash., Brentwood, Calif., Brooklyn, North Little Rock, Ark., Omaha, Topeka, Kan., and Denver.

U.S. May Renegotiate Panama Canal Treaty

PANAMA CITY (AP) — Sometime soon the United States must sit down with an unhappy Panama to start negotiations for a new treaty on the Panama Canal.

The important waterway which knifes through Panama is a course of growing aggravation for Panamanians who feel U.S. control over the Canal Zone offends Panama's sovereignty and national dignity.

The issue of a new treaty—to give Panama jurisdictional control over the Canal Zone—has become a rallying point for an increasing nationalism in Panama.

A 1903 treaty gives the United States legal jurisdiction over the 15-mile wide Canal Zone. This has rankled Panama for a long time and led to riots in 1964 that caused the U.S. government to agree to negotiate a new treaty to end all sources of conflict.

By 1967 the draft treaties were ready, but they were never ratified by either government. Last August, Panamanian strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos renounced the 1967 drafts. His government said they did not remove the main source of conflict—U.S. control over what is considered here to be Panamanian territory.

Their position is that Panama will demand the 1903 treaty be junked and Panama given sovereignty over the Canal Zone. The United States would be allowed to operate the canal under Panamanian supervision.

One of Panama's arguments is that the Canal Zone is a product of colonialism and therefore violates the United States charter. The U.N. charter, argues Lopez Guevara, takes precedence over the 1903 treaty.

Flag Requests Keep U.S. Capitol Pole Busy

WASHINGTON (AP) — For a large part of nearly every working day one American flag after another is run up a pole over the U.S. Capitol, allowed to flutter for a second or two then lowered.

There is no special occasion being marked. The activity, which takes up several hours, is to satisfy requests to members of Congress by the folks back home for flags that have flown over the venerable building.

According to Philip Roof, executive assistant to the Capitol architect, the demand is so great each flag is limited to a quick up-and-down.

Some days hundreds of flags are flown, Roof said, with the total last year reaching a record 31,700.

There were 23,700 flown in 1969 and 21,000 in 1968. From 1937 through 1970, 226,568 flags were flown.

Through May this year, 11,185 flags were flown.

The largest number of flags flown in a single day was on July 4 1960, when more than 5,000 were flown. This was after Hawaii and Alaska became states and the 50-star flag became official.

Constituents writing for flags must send checks for payment. The flag is purchased from a Capitol stationary shop and sent to the architect's office. Constituents may ask for 3-by-5 or 5-by-8 foot flags. The 3-by-5 flag costs $3.39, the 5-by-8 $6.22.

After it is flown, the flag and a letter signed by Architect of the Capitol George M. White is sent to the constituent attesting the flag was flown over the Capitol on a certain date.

Froehlke Nominated For Cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Nixon announced Tuesday he is nominating Robert F. Froehlke for promotion from assistant secretary of Defense for administration to secretary of the Army.

Froehlke, 48, is a native of Neenah, Wis., practiced law in Madison and later became an attorney and executive vice president of a Stevens Point Life Insurance Company. In between he was on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin Law School.

In his new job, Froehlke is succeeding Stanley R. Resor, who has resigned and his salary will go up from $38,000 to $42,000.

Overseas Mail Rates Increased

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Postal Service announced Monday new overseas postal rates which are expected to add $20.6 million to annual revenues.

Effective July 1, air mail letters to all countries outside the Western Hemisphere will be 21 cents a half ounce, a 1-cent increase over the present rate for Europe and North Africa but 4 cents below the current rate for other countries including most of Africa, Asia, Australia and the Pacific area.

Air mail letters to Western Hemisphere nations, except Canada and Mexico, will increase from 15 to 17 cents. Air mail rates for Canada and Mexico went to 11 cents last month.

Widow Files For Husband's Legislative Seat

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)— Mrs. Judith Grace O'Connor of Bridgeton, Mo., widow of the late Rep. Patrick J. O'Connor, Monday filed her candidacy as his successor in the Missouri House.

County Republicans were expected to select a nominee for the seat later this afternoon, county GOP Central Committee Chairman Barry Short said.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)--A Springfield insurance executive, an attorney and the corporation they serve as officers have agreed to purchase controlling interest in the Empire Bank of Springfield.

Up To Supreme Court

Legal Secrecy Questioned

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A major constitutional legal battle over government secrecy and freedom of the press headed to the U.S. Supreme Court today after appellate rulings in government suits against The New York Times and The Washington Post over articles based on classified Pentagon Papers.

As a Los Angeles federal grand jury began an investigation into how the top secret Pentagon study of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war was leaked, three other news organizations today printed articles they said were based at least in part on the 47-volume report.

An appeals court in Washington ruled Wednesday the Post could resume publication of its suspended series after 6 p.m. Friday. A similar court in New York said the Times could also resume but could not use any material the government contended was dangerous to national security pending a lower court review of those documents.

The Justice Department, which has sought injunctions against the Times, Post and The Boston Globe on the ground that publication of the papers threatened national security, said it would appeal the Washington ruling to the Supreme Court. The Times said it would appeal the New York ruling.

President Nixon said Wednesday that he would make available to Congress the complete 7,000-page study but that the document would remain top secret pending a review of that classification by the executive branch.

Meanwhile, Knight Newspapers Inc., which publishes 11 newspapers, and the Los Angeles Times today printed articles they said were based on the documents. The Chicago SunTimes also ran stories it said were drawn from the secret study and from "government documents."

In Los Angeles, a U.S. District Court granted immunity to two persons subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury probing what a Justice Department spokesman called possible violations of national security laws.

One of the two granted immunity was Anthony J. Russo, 34, a former employe of the Rand Corp., a Defense Department "think-tank." His lawyer said he wanted to challenge the federal immunity statute and russo did not testify Wednesday.

A one-time Rand and Defense Department employe, Daniel Ellsberg, has been named by a former New York Times newsman as the source that gave the Pentagon study to that newspaper.

Ellsberg, in a CBS television interview with Walter Cronkite Wednesday, did not comment on that charge. But he said the notion that the study was leaked to embarrass former President Lyndon B. Johnson "will be quickly allayed" when the full document is made public.

The full study reveals a "sameness of policy throughout four administrations," he said. "The real lessons really come from seeing the whole sweep of the history. There has never been any year when there would have been a war in Indochina without American money fueling it."

The Chicago Sun-Times said in today's editions that documents in the study revealed that a key plotter in the coup that ousted South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem informed the U.S. embassy 26 days prior to the coup that assassination of Diem was one of three courses being contemplated.

The Chicago newspaper also quoted "government documents" as revealing that Kennedy sent then Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to Vietnam in May 1961 with orders to "encourage" South Vietnam to request U.S. ground troops. Diem resisted the idea, the SunTimes said.

Roger Hilsman, a former State Department official, said Wednesday that two memos he wrote in 1963 about the possible overthrow of Diem were taken out of context and misinterpreted by the Sun-Times in its Tuesday editions.

The Sun-Times stories said Hilsman recommended Diem be overthrown if he entered negotiations with North Vietnam. Hilsman said the memos were "contingency documents" that had no connection with Diem's ouster in November.

The Los Angeles Times reported today that the Pentagon study also showed that the National Security Council rejected a recommendation by a State Department expert in 1963 that the United States pull out of Vietnam because it could not win the war against the Communists.

Paul M. Kattenburg, then head of the State Department's Vietnam Working Group, made the recommendation but it was overruled by Secretary of State Dean Rusk, the newspaper said.

The Knight Newspapers story, as published in the Philadelphia Inquirer, cited the Pentagon documents in reporting that former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara proposed a coalition government for Vietnam in 1967.

The sawpf)aid the documents showed McNamara emerging as "a tragic figure who rapidly became disillusioned with the war he had recommended.

The article said McNamara's disenchantment culminated with a recommendation to President Johnson on May 19, 1967, that the United States persuade Saigon to seek an accommodation with noncommunist members of the National Liberation Front—the political arm of the Viet Cong.

In the court actions Wednesday, all nine judges of the Washington appellate panel agreed with a lower court in denying a government request for an injunction against the Post. Two judges filed partial dissent voicing serious reservations about printing some of the secret papers.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell termed the decision "regrettable." Post publisher Katharine Graham said it "sustains the great American tradition of freedom of the press."

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York ruled the New York Times could resume publishing parts of the Pentagon study Friday but ordered further secret hearing on certain papers the government said were vital to the national security.

In Boston U.S. Judge Anthony Julian ordered the Boston Globe to place its copies of the secret study in a bank safe deposit vault, reversing his ruling Tuesday that the papers be impounded.

Final Witnesses Called Today In Medina Case

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — An Army general is among the final witnesses expected to testify today as the pretrial hearing of a motion to dismiss My Lai murder charges against Capt. Ernest Medina nears its end.

Maj. Gen. Bernard Rogers, a top liaison officer for the Secreaary of the Army, will be questioned about a sergeant's claim that he was threatened by superior officers with court-martial unless he testified against Medina. S.Sgt. Lawrence Charles La Croix, a member of Charlie Company when Medina commanded the unit at My Lai, testified earlier this week that Rogers and others threatened him with court-martial for premeditated murder if he refused.

Three colonels, one from the Pentagon, flatly denied Wednesday over threatened La Croix, 30, now stationed at Ft. Carson, Colo.

The military judge, Col. Kenneth Howard, indicated he will rule on the defense motion to have Medina's case thrown out on grounds of improper influence by high-ranking officers, after all the evidence is presented.

If the motion is rejected, the defense has 17 other motions for dismissal, and arguments will begin on them.

The 34-year-old Medina, of Montrose, Colo., is charged with assaulting one villager and murdering 102 others during an assault on My Lai in March, 1968.

Medina's two Army attorneys testified Wednesday that 3rd Army staff judge advocate, Col. Wilson Freeman, warned them that seeking a dismissal by the military judge would be wasted effort.

Informant Unnamed, But

Gilmore, Wyatt Are Bound Over

By CHARLES BRADY

JACKSON — Hugh Marvin Gilmore, 21, of 13 Green Meadows, Sikeston, and Ronnie Lee Wyatt, 24, of Cape Girardeau, were ordered bound over to circuit court Wednesday afernoon on a charge of selling narcotic drugs.

The pair were arrested along with 24 other Southeast Missouri youths during the May 12 drug raids conducted by peace officers in Cape Girardeau, Scott, and Butler counties and highway patrolmen.

Cape Girardeau county Magistrate Jerry Estes, who presided at the preliminary hearing, said there is "probable cause for the sale of LSD" and other stimulant drugs and ordered the $5,000 bonds on Gilmore and Wyatt to remain in force until circuit court convenes July 6.

Missouri State highway patrol troopers Frank Burkhead, 25, and R. A. Ashurst, 33, were the only witnesses called to testify by Cape Girardeau County Prosecuting Attorney Al Seier. They testified they were working undercover and were assigned to the narcotic and investigation unit of the patrol. Burkhead said they were present the afternoon of April 9 at 406 North Pacific in Cape Girardeau when the alleged drugs were sold by Gilmore and Wyatt to them.

Weber Gilmore, Sikeston attorney and father of Hugh Marvin Gilmore, was defense attorney for his son at the preliminary hearings and Attorney Don Dickerson of Cape Girardeau defended Wyatt.

The defense attorneys concentrated their questions on learning the identity of a confidential informant whose information to the patrol led to the incident April 9 and the subsequent arrests.

Burkhead had testified that he, Trooper Ashurst, Ronnie Crawford, of Cape Girardeau, and a confidential informant were present at the house on North Pacific at the time Gilmore and Wyatt allegedly sold narcotic drugs to the troopers.

Attorney Gilmore asked Burkhead who the informant was. Seier objected and Judge Estes ruled that the witness did not have to reveal the informant's name.

"Was Mike DuBois present at the time?" Gilmore then asked. Again Seier objected but the judge ruled that the defense had the right to ask if a certain person was present.

"Yes sir, he (DuBois) was there," Burkhead replied. That, for all practical purposes, revealed DuBois as the confidential informant.

DuBois, 26, of Sikeston, pleaded guilty May 24 to a charge of possession of heroin and disorderly conduct in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and was sentenced to 60 days in jail. He was arrested May 21 on a Fort Lauderdale beach.

Burkhead testified after the four arrived at the house, "Wyatt said 'Are you here to get some stuff?' and we indicated we were."

Burkhead commented:

"Wyatt asked Gilmore to go and get it (acid). He (Gilmore) was gone for maybe 60 seconds. He handed the stuff to Ronnie Wyatt."

Burkhead said there was some "hasseling as to the price" and that at 3:47 p.m. he gave Wyatt two $20 and one $5 bills and Wyatt in turn gave him the white substance.

Ashurst testified that he had met Wyatt at a parking lot in Sikeston through a youth named Bill Prindle of Sikeston. He said he had met Wyatt only once before the April 9 incident.

The defense attorneys and the prosecution agreed the substance alleged to be a narcotic drug need not be present at the preliminary hearing.

COMPLETION OF THE NEW STANLEY MUFFLER COMPANY in East Prairie is scheduled for July 15 and will employ 60 when production is in full swing.

Plant Near Completion

EAST PRAIRIE— Completion of a building for Stanley Muffler Company, Inc., is scheduled July 15, said Owner-Manager Donald Hubbard, who drew up plans for construction of the 80 by 200 foot steel building and is supervising the construction work.

The offices and workers lounge of the truck terminal will be retained by the muffler company and the garage will be converted into a machine shop and storage department.

Stanley Muffler, named for Hubbard's son, is an expansion of the Hubbard Muffler Co., of which Hubbard owns 30 per cent. In addition to tractor mufflers, the plant will manufacture foreign car and truck mufflers.

The company will begin production Sept. 1 with two assembly lines capable of producing 1,200 mufflers per day.

The company will employ 30 at first and after production is in full swing, the number will double probably, Hubbard said.

Arrest after Razor Attack At Howardville

NEW MADRID— Lee Andrew Hudson, 29, of Memphis, this morning waived preliminary hearing on a felonious assault charge in magistrate court before Judge Leo Hedgepeth. Bond of $1,000 was set.

Charges against Hudson were made after his arrest at 1 a.m. today by Howardville Marshal C. B. Correthers and Lilbourn Marshal Johnnie Martin.

Explosion Kills Two in Aqueduct

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A predawn natural gas blast in an underground aqueduct killed at least two men today and left the fate of 15 others in doubt. Six hours later workers, who had said they expected to find no survivors, took one man out alive.

The 1:50 a.m. explosion was in a five-mile-long tunnel under construction two years in foothills of the San Gabriel Mountains 30 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles.

The survivor was brought out by a rescue crew, his face blackened and eyes closed. There was no immediate word on his condition.

Earlier, one body had been brought out and officials said a second body had been found.

Paul Bagley, 67, said that after the blast he heard fellow workers "hollering for help" and tried four times to rush to their aid, but was driven back by rolling clouds of choking black smoke.

"You couldn't breathe," he told newsmen. "If you could breathe I'd have got in there. The fourth time I couldn't hear them ... they died right there."

Bagley, exhausted and sootcovered, said he and another worker who survived the blast, Louis Renteria, 51, were about a mile from the scene of the explosion, which officials said was about 800 yards from the dead end in the tunnel.

A spokesman for Lockheed Shipbuilding Corp., the main contractor on the tunnel, said the explosion apparently was caused by a spark from drilling equipment that hit an undetected pocket of natural gas.

Although earlier tests had found no gas in the area in which the men were working, he said, "Apparently they hit a gas pocket."

What's A Miner Mayor and Why?

By JUDY GAZETTE

What kind of man would want to be mayor of Miner, the town of 700 on the outskirts of Sikeston? Surely if such a man had real political aspirations, he would start somewhere else say, the county seat or Sikeston, itself. Does he even have such aspirations?

Milton Sadler, newly elected mayor of Miner, says no.

"If you feel a need to use your influence," he commented seriously, "for the betterment of your community, then it's an obligation."

Sadler was born in Sikeston in 1935, attended schools here, and married Peggy Joyce DeField of East Prairie in 1953. His father was Phillip Sadler, and of his mother, Mrs. Montie Sadler, he says, "she's a fine Christian lady."

"Then Sharon, our oldest, came along," he laughed, "and making money became more important. Then I sold cars in order to make more."

When he was younger, he wanted to be a mechanic – a good one – and in retrospect, thinks he might have liked to be a doctor.

"It's too late now," he said. "I'd never make it."

In 1956 he went to work for Fabick Brothers Equipment Company in Sikeston as a mechanic. He intended to learn the background heavy equipment and be a salesman.

"I thought that would provide more income," he explained, "but I just kept moving up in the mechanics department, and for the last several years I have been a field service supervisor."

In September of 1970, while helping work on a tractor, he injured his back, rupturing three discs in his back. Since, he has been in and out of more hospitals than a drug salesman. Although he is unable to work, he is still employed by Fabick. His last hospital stay ended several weeks ago.

"It's a big shock at age 36," he said, "to have your background and everything you've prepared for come to a halt. I suddenly realized that I have to use my head or hands or influence, instead of my back! It's as though I have to reprove myself in other fields."

So with additional time on his hands, Sadler decided to run for the Miner city board. He succeeded and was then elected chairman, unseating Harold Lewis.

RED STAR OVER NEW YORK

Something new is taking place in New York. You can be awakened to canned voices on the street corner singing: "arise, ye prisoners of starvation; Arise, ye wretched of the earth. For justice thunders condemnation . . ." the words of the Communist anthem, the Internationale.

New Yorkers peer out of their window and look at the red flags massed below. In the center of these flags is a star. Above it are the words "Fight for Socialism," and below "Progressive Labor Party." There are no American flags.

The sound truck blares out the voices of the speakers in Spanish and English: "Power to the people!" After each speech the record plays the Internationale.

When you go down to the street corner to have a look at these people, you are surprised to see vigorous young men and women singing: "Arise, ye prisoners of starvation." Not one in the crowd looks as though he or she has ever missed a meal.

Pedestrians are handed a sheet by one of these "wretched of the earth." It contains a big red star in the center. At the top are the words: "Workers of the World, Unite!" the Communist slogan handed down by Karl Marx.

Printed on the star are the slogans of the Party: "Fight For Socialism! Crush Racism! 6 Hour Day for 8 Hours Pay! Unite With All Workers Who are Fighting U. S. Bosses! Drive U. S. Imperialism out of Southeast Asia Now! Workers and Oppressed People of the World, Unite!"

Red Star over New York, 1971. What can the most mechanzied and industrialized country in the world learn from Russian Communism? They are only now getting a mass-production automobile plant, thanks to Italian and American help. They cannot feed themselves regularly because socialized farming is inefficient, a great corrupter, a scandalous non-producer.

Commented the news dealer on the corner: "Yes, power to the people. They plan to be the commissars." That's what Communism is: a grab for absolute power.

JAPANESE ELECTION

An election campaign is under way in Japan and the Japanese are enduring it calmly. At stake are half of the 250 seats in the upper house of the Diet, the House of Councillors. The real center of power in the legislature is the lower House of Representatives, which may explain the public's lack of enthusiasm. The aristocratic upper chamber of prewar times, the House of Peers, was demoted to an inferior position by the 1947 Constitution. The House of Representatives can easily override any action the upper chamber takes.

To prepare for the election on Sunday, June 27, leaders of the major political parties tour the cities, speaking from motorcades and platforms. In his book Japan: Images and Realities (1969) Richard Halloran describes a typical Japanese political campaign. "the speeches are monotonous recitations of known records and positions; no fireworks, no mudslinging, no urgent cries either for a new Japan or a return to the good old days. A politician, once asked why he bothered to go through the barren, futuile motions, replied: 'Ah, but you don't understand. We must do this to show our sincerity. If we didn't, the people who have voted for us before will think that we are insincere and vote for somebody else.' " Such equanimity may surprise Americans, but as Halloran points out: "The vote to a Westerner is a right, to a Japanese a duty or obligation."

The Liberal Democratic Party, really a coalition of conservative, business-oriented factions, has been the ruling party since 1948. The results of this election could influence the party's choice of a successor to Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, who may be replaced next fall. A report in the Christian Science Monitor (June 9, 1971) indicated that the LDP is loosing its firm hold on the electorate, and emphasizes the importance of the election as an indicator of Japan's future. "Decisions that are made now on such questions as pollution, the quality of life, China policy, the Okinawa reversion agreement, Japan's national security and emerging role in world affairs, nuclear weapons, and amendment of the peace clause of the Constitution will shape the next decade of the country's development."

RAILROADING AS WE REMEMBER IT

Now all but forgotten, for many years the Pullman car was the symbol of luxury transportation and 10-2-1 was the designation of the standard car consisting of 10 sections of facing seats which made down into an upper and lower berth; two compartments with an upper and lower berth; and one drawing room with an upper and lower berth and a couch. The compartments and the drawing room could be made into a spacious suite by opening the connecting doors.

The approach to this transportation opulence was not casual, but in an atmosphere of palatial grandeur where competitive rail services engaged in a departure ritual presided over by the train conductor and the Pullman conductor. This was the passenger check-in dance, handed down to and now performed in much the same manner by the scheduled airlines. Most of the rest of passenger rail service including the vast depots are now just a memory.

Intercity roads graveled but not hard surfaced were pounded to a fine and choking dust which reduced visibility by the steadily increasing car and truck traffic. When these intercity roads were surfaced, the death knell of the passenger train and many a small town was sounded.

Landlocked small cities watching their rail passenger service vanish with the advent of the motor vehicle and hard surfaced "farm to market" highway system pinned hopes for competitive survival on the airplane as the aviation industry converted from a war-time to peace-time economy.

Numerous aviation clinics were attended by experts and others to formulate some manner of directional thinking, out of which came support for a nationwide airport development program and a system of "feeder" airlines to reach every small city with connecting service from here to anywhere in the world.

But the moment of economic truth for passenger transportation is found with either long haul traffic, high density traffic, or both, whether it be bus, rail, or airplane. Many a small city could not sustain even subsidized "feeder" airline service. Larger cities could not sustain both rail and scheduled air service. Rail passenger service has now passed into the hands of the federal government where the "cream" can be skimmed by tolerant avoidance of regulatory agencies.

So, there is nothing new in the world even if we like to call it progress.

A chamber of commerce official has estimated that "seekers after greener pastures" carry ten to twenty per cent of a community's wealth into larger cities -- often into other states.

"The sad part of this drainage on the community is that, more often than not, the long-distance shopper spends more than he would at home," he said.

This comment did not refer to extra money spent on travel costs and the value of wasted time. The speaker was talking about the cost of goods purchased.

What is the explanation for the shopping wanderlust which plagues so many communities?

There are several rationalizations:

Some people think it is smart to say that they went shopping in Metropolis or Cosmopolis.

But most of the wandering shoppers are just ordinary hard-pressed consumers who honestly believe the grass is greener over the hill. The realistic local merchant should try to understand the basis for this latter class of out-of-town shopping. It is a situation in which he shares the blame.

Out-of-town shopping is most often the result of advertising which come into the local community in regional publications.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

There is no real reason why we should always try to rid ourselves of unreasonable prejudices. Being ornery and contrary now and then is part of human nature and helps keep us human. For example, I have spent all my life on the lam from lamb. I know it is unreasonable to flee lamb when so many people agree it is tender, tasty and nutritious, but any occasion on which I can evade eating lamb is a moral victory. To me lamb is still a mouthful of wool, fit only for women and children too small to defend themselves.

I feel the same way about eggplant. Whenever I hear the word, I get a mental image of a green hen turning into a halfripe tomato.

Some of the best customers of door-to-door salesmen are recently retired men. They are so grateful to have somebody to talk to beside their wives that they usually buy something after listening to the sales spiel.

Never lend money to a guy who half the time wears one of his sox inside out. You can't trust anyone who is that badly organized.

Unhappiness is what a wife feels when her husband feels happy, and she can't for the life of her figure out the reason why.

Sneak kindly to your wife for the next couple of months, fellows, and bring her home a rosebud now and then. After that she won't mind so much reassuming the seasonal anonymity of being just one more of television's pro football widows.

It is time to go on a vacation if you find you are making more than one trip a day to the pencil sharpener simply because you can't think of any other way to act busy.

When a politician starts waving the flag too hard, it's a good idea to look under his rug and see what he is seeking to hide.

Wives like following the principle of togetherness in marriage more than husbands do. Togetherness in small details, that is. A wife is always willing to join her husband's fasting program when he has to go on a diet, but feels hurt and neglected when he shows unwillingness to join her in a diet she has to follow.

About the only consoling thing you can think of when one of your friends over 50 takes up jogging, is that you'll get a half day off from the office to attend the services for him.

Experience is what costs a fellow so much to get when he doesn't want it, and what so many business firms pay so little for when they demand someone who has it.

CUSTOM-MADE TOWN BUILDS -IN SAFETY

A new town for 75,000 people being built on 12,000 acres of open farmland has incorporated the best new ideas in traffic control.

Litchfield Park, Arizona has arterial roads which are limited access parkways, fenced off and landscaped. There are no pedestrians, roadside stores, homes, driveways, or parked cars to interfere with the flow of traffic. Very few traffic lights are needed.

All businesses are in shopping centers and industrial parks. Even gasoline stations are off the main roads. Homes are built on cul-de-sacs or long, looping roads that return cars to their original entry point.

A complete 35-mile long network of pathways winds throughout the town for pedestrians, and bicyclists. It crosses main roads via overpasses, and keeps vehicular traffic entirely separate from foot traffic. The road system has safety built-in.

The freeways will be heavily traveled during the summer vacation months ahead. With this in mind, Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, today urged drivers to practice the utmost courtesy as they travel on the superhighways.

"It is extremely important that drivers practice courtesy on the freeways during the vacation months ahead," Hockaday stated. "The large volume of traffic expected during this time of the year combined with the high speeds traveled on these superhighways call for drivers to show a great deal of courtesy to their fellow travelers. It is also imperative that they be extra alert for any emergency situations."

The Patrol Superintendent then pointed out several ways a motorist can practice courtesy as they travel on the freeways: 1. Watch for drivers entering the freeway. Adjust your speed to help the new arrivals make a smooth, safe entry. 2. Signal your intention to change lanes. Don't dart into another driver's lane without warning. 3. Keep pace with the legal flow of traffic. Slow driving on high - speed highways is dangerous. 4. Avoid moving from one lane to another. Stay in the right - hand lane unless overtaking or passing another vehicle. 5. Keep your distance from the car ahead. Stay far enough back to allow for unexpected stops.

"A single discourteous act on a high - speed, heavily traveled freeway can easily result in a tragic accident," Hockaday concluded. "I urge drivers to be extra alert and to practice courtesy as they travel on the freeways in Missouri and throughout the country this summer."

INDO-CHINA PLOT

The NEW YORK TIMES has acquired a copy of a lengthy Department of Defense report on U.S. participation in war in Indo-China which was compiled on orders of former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara which makes the document suspect, but the 3,000-page analysis is interesting to say the least. The study shows that four administrations--Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson--progressively involved the U.S. in the Viet Nam struggle.

Generally, according to the TIMES, the Truman administation decided to give military aid to France in its fight against the communist-led Viet-Minh; President Eisenhower decided to rescue a fledgling South Viet Nam government from a communist take-over; the Kennedy administration jumped from a limited-risk participation to a broad commitment; the Johnson administration decided in the spring of 1964 to wage "overt" war.

But the fantastic portion of the report declares that an expanding program of bombing of North Viet Nam was undertaken despite the fact that our intelligence community did not believe it would stop Hanoi's support of the Viet Cong and that the bombing program was pursued even though it was deemed "militarily ineffective" within a few months after it was begun.

The Defense Department report said our first efforts were containment and in later stages of the war we aimed at preserving the prestige of the U.S. The analysis, prepared by McNamara's instigation, also concluded that warfare planned by this country in 1964 was not made known to the public for a year. One can only conclude that this statement leaves Mr. McNamara's creditibility gap showing. HLH.

ADDICTION: BILLIONS AND DEATH

Can't Cure Inner City Crises Without Slashing Narcotics Deluge From Nation's Youth

by Victor Riesel

After talking with James Buckley no one ever again could misread the word conservative as antediluvian. The junior senator from New York, the first Conservative Party candidate to be elected to the upper house -- or Congress itself -- is refreshingly literate, informed in depth and unafraid to answer to the word conservative if he hears the call.

He is young by political standards. Yet already there are the usual whispers that he is on his way towards the national ticket before the decade is actually over.

One evening as we left my studio after a broadcast I asked Mr. Buckley where he thought the real national crunch was. In the inncer city, said he. I asked what he meant, specifically. Here is his specific answer.

By James L. Buckley
from New York

Washington:--On April 1, I introduced legislation in the United States Senate which has as its aim the termination of foreign economic assistance furnished by the United States to any country which fails to take appropriate steps to eliminate the production, processing and export of narcotic drugs.

I believe this legislation, which is now being co-sponsored by 12 other senators, to be of the utmost importance to the well-being of the people of the United States.

The Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs estimates that 80 per cent of all heroin reaching our country originates in Turkey. The opium grown there is transformed into morphine base and shipped from Turkey to France where the morphine base is converted into heroin. It is eventually smuggled into the United States.

Permit me to present some shocking facts.

First, New York City has, within the past eight years, lost more lives to drug abuse than the entire state of New York has lost in the Vietnam war. As of June 1970, heroin overdoses and complications had become the major causes of death for persons in New York City between the ages of 15 and 35.

Second, in New York City 100,000 narcotic addicts spend an average of $35 a day on narcotic drugs, or approximately $1.3 billion a year.

Third, 98 per cent of narcotic addicts support their drug habit by turning to crime.

Fourth, there are approximately 200,000 heroin addicts in the United States.

In addition to these facts, over 1150 human beings died last year in New York City from narcotic-related causes. It is estimated that approximatley half of those who died were under 23 years of age, and more than 200 nineteen or younger. The youngest was only 13. Seventy-five per cent of those unfortunate people died as a result of acute reactions to heroin overdoses, while 15 per cent died during or following violence involving narcotics, and another 10 per cent died from hepatitis, tetanus and bacterial endocarditis, all of which were related to heroin usage.

Drug addiction cuts across all social, ethnic, racial and religious lines. The teenager in the ghetto and the teenager in the Park Avenue penthouse are tempted to fall into the drug trap, and thus ruin their lives. Too many parents are either unaware of the hazards to their children, or assume that their children are too smart to play around with drugs until suddenly and unexpectedly they are confronted with the terrifying fact that their 18-year-old son or daughter is a heroin addict. This news usually reaches these parents when the child is arrested for murder, armed robbery, burglary, mugging or some other crime which the child resorts to in order to pay the pusher for the drug which supplies his habit and, in some cases, leads to a pointless grave.

Information obtained from the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs reveals the appalling extent to which the drug epidemic is spreading across our country. Addicts have been found in such unexpected rural places as Gunnison, Colo.; Pasco, Wash.; and Cermit, Texas. For each addict who is finally found, it is believe that there are dozens walking the streets of America, unable to function properly, and thus turning to crimes, many of the most serious magnitude.

There are other statistics which will come as a surprise to most Americans. For example, very few people know that over 60 per cent of all the robberies which take place in New York are committed by persons on drugs. Seventy-five per cent of the robberies, burglaries, larcenies and auto thefts in affluent Fairfield County, Conn., are believed to be narcotic-related. And in Albuquerque, N.M., drug addicts or others who have been addicted, commit 75 per cent of the burglaries.

Mayor Lindsay has revealed that one half of all prison inmates are drug addicts and that the taxpayers of the city are required to spend $50 million a year on court, prison and police services related to these addicts. The mayor also revealed that in 1968 there were 22,000 drug-related arrests, but within two years that figure had reached 52,000.

Narcotic drugs can be purchased in many elementary schools in America, and one congressman recently testified that "Hard drugs on some school grounds are as easy to get as chewing gum."

I fully realize that the legislation which I have introduced will not bring a sudden halt to narcotic addiction, but I believe that we have to start someplace. Take our money out of the pockets of those nations which are growing rich on the debasement, destruction and in many instances the sudden death of our youth, and a much more serious effort will be made by those nations to terminate the production, processing and trafficking in narcotic drugs than is now being taken by them.

I believe that a reduction in the supply of heroin will drive the cost even higher than it is today. This, in turn, will take the initial contact with heroin out of the financial reach of the first-timer user, and make it more difficult for the casual experimenter.

Our great cities are faced with problems, many of them of the most profound magnitude. I believe that, before solutions to these problems are arrived at, the problems caused by narcotic addiction will first have to be met and solved.

When I introduced my legislation (which is known as S.J. Res.78) I did so because I believed that it would strike at the heart of a critical problem that has entered hundreds of thousands of American homes, and touched, in the most tragic way, the lives of innocent and unsophisticated young people who had been lured into a horrendous and hideous habit. Heroin addiction and the enormous problems it creates constitute a national tragedy, and an avenue to personal disaster.

(I urge all who agree with Senator Buckley to write today to your senators and congressmen and ask them to support his legislation, S.J. Res.78. The life you save may be that of your dear child. Let's get behind the effort to eliminate the illegal importation of narcotic drugs into our country, and the time to get behind that effort is now.--Victor Riesel.)

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Joe McGinnis's book, "The Selling of the President," revealed in excruciating detail how presidential candidate Richard Nixon was marketed to the American public in 1968 like a bottle of bubble bath beads.

He was taken in hand by advertising and television specialists who prepared him for public display. They preened, powdered and pomaded him. They taught him how to project a warm, fatherly, presidential image on the tube.

What Nixon stood for was of secondary importance. The overriding goal was to sell not the issues but the image to the people.

Now he is being fitted with a new image for 1972. The conservative Nixon of 1968 is rapidly being liberalized before our eyes.

He fired his barber and hired Milton Pitts, a tonsorial artist, who is billed as "Washington's leading men's hair stylist."

Pitts promptly washed the oil and goo out of Nixon's hair, combed out the curly ends, lowered his sideburns, and gave him a razor-cut. Result: a more modern "natural" look. According to one insider, the President even colors his hair to hide the gray.

Nixon's tailor, H. Freeman & Son of Philadelphia, is also sending the President modestly designed double-breasted suits with wider lapels. Nixon has also started wearing more modern, three-inch wide ties.

He watches his weight (170 pounds), gets plenty of sleep (seven hours minimum), and shaves as often as three times a day.

--LOCKER ROOM JOKES--

Attorney General John Mitchell, who is expected to resume his role as campaign manager in 1972, also appreciates the value of a good image. At a recent Washington party, he was heard to declare that the "Nixon men are not all squares." To prove his point, he rose to toast the hostess and told two locker room jokes of W.C. Fields vintage.

"We have got to change the Nixon image," he later explained. "People do not see the President for what he really is or see what he is really doing."

An ally in his cause, Mitchell said, was Treasury Secretary John Connally, who had already met with some Republican Senators to admonish them for "not selling the President to the country."

If GOP Senators aren't selling the President as they should, the White House crew is more efficient. The Presidential image makers weigh Nixon's every word and monitor his every step. They plan campaigns to promote his programs, bring in congressmen for breakfast meetings, coordinate with business leaders and special interest groups, arrange endless briefings.

They paint the President as a wise ruler forever being fondled by the rosy fingertips of fortune. They rush to poke their thumbs in every hole in the dam. The Laos operation, they would have us know, was a smashing success; the campuses, their intelligence sources say, are now seas of tranquility.

--NIXON AND NETWORKS--

For all of the Administration's bellyaching about the networks, Nixon has commandeered more prime time on the nation's TV screens than did all his predecessors combined.

Image experts note that Nixon is careful to choose formats that tend to project him as a "warm" figure. They also point out that when he is interviewed on television, he invariably chooses to be questioned by the network "anchor men" rather than by reporters who cover him daily and are more familiar with the White House operation.

For the public's benefit, President Nixon pretends to be unconcerned about his image and deprecates the "experts" who attempt to plaster his beard with makeup or adjust the television lights to hide the bags under his eyes.

"I don't worry about images..." he said on television. "The public relations experts always come in and are constantly riding me... 'You have got to do this, that and the other thing to change your image.' I am not going to change my image."

No one will say how many image specialists are on the White House payrool. But confidential sources put the number at about 55, counting secretaries.

Of course, all Presidents have attempted to sell themselves and their programs. But never in the history of the Republic has a President attacked the task with more cold calculation and more expert help than has Richard Nixon.

--WASHINGTON WHIRL--

Bargain Cadillacs--We were the first to report that congressional chairmen were able to lease gleaming new Cadillacs, Lincolns and Chrysler Imperials for token fees. It is only fair to report, therefore, that we have now caught the Pentagon wangling the same bargain. Ten new Cadillac Fleetwoods have been delivered to the Pentagon for the riding comfort of high officials. The Pentagon pays less than $100 a month for each car. Anyone else would have to pay at least four times that amount. General Motors happens to be one of the nation's biggest defense contractors. The officials who ride around in GM's $100-a-month Cadillacs, of course, determine who gets defense contracts.

Tax Cuts--President Nixon is eager to get the economy booming again before the 1972 election. He is tempted to stimulate the economy by speeding up the income tax cuts that are scheduled to take effect in 1972 and 1973. The President's economic advisers, however, have warned that too much stimulus could cause soaring inflation. Best guess is that the President will accept the political risk of a tagging economy and will hold to a slower pace of recovery.

Ann Landers

He Played Footsie And Now She's Out to Get Him

Dear Ann Landers; I am not a Yale student and this is no joke. I am a married man who loves his wife and I am not interested in fooling around. The problem is my best friend's wife.

About three months ago a group of us went to a dinner party at our club. This woman started to play footsie with me under the table. I had had a few drinks and responded, just for the fun of it. She took me seriously and now she won't leave me alone. She keeps calling my wife and setting up evenings together. This woman is sly as a fox and can figure out the goldarndest ways to corner me. When I leave the room for whatever reason, she is behind me. Last night when I went to the bathroom I had to move fast to lock her out.

I don't want to tell my wife but I wish she would stop accepting invitations from this woman. Although her husband and I are good friends I can see him at lunch.

Please print your advice in the paper. I can't have any letters from Ann Landers coming to either my home or my office. Thank you.---Sweating.

Dear Sweat: Tell Mrs. Mustard Plaster of 1971 that her agressiveness is becoming obvious to others and she'd better cool it. Explain that she is undoubtedly the most appealing woman since Helen of Troy but you have somehow summoned the courage to resist her charms and she should please leave you alone.

Dear Ann Landers: A while back a reader asked you if your teeth are your own. You said "Yes" and I am sure you were telling the truth because of the unfeeling way you reply to people who have denture problems.

It's easy for you to sit in Chicago with your own teeth and give people advice on dentistry, but unless you've been through a complete extraction and suffered with ill-fitting dentures, you are in no position to tell anybody anything.

I fiddled around with a $400 set of dentures for three months. Finally I told the dentist I would report him to the County Dental Society if he didn't stop monkeying around with adjustments and make me a set of teeth I could eat with. Do you know what he did? He gave me my $400 back and told me to go to another dentist.

I blindfolded myself and picked a name out of the phone book and guess what? I got me a dentist who made a perfect set of teeth---never had to go back for even one adjustment. What do you think of THAT, Ann Landers?---Nutty Al (My friends' nickname for me.)

Dear Al: Congratulations on your new teeth. And say hello to your friends for me. I think they've got you properly labeled.

Dear Ann Landers: I was engaged to Gert for three years--ring and all--when she ran off with a guy she had met only a week before. I thought I'd go out of my mind. Three months later she was in the hospital with a fractured skull. Her husband hit her with a baseball bat. She sent word she wanted to see me. When I went to see her I ran into her husband. He was visiting her, too. She told me she was going to give him another chance.

Last week she was back in the hospital with a broken shoulder. He hit her again. Now she wants me to go to him and talk about a divorce. I really love her, Ann. What should I do?---Undecided.

Dear Un: Leavy her alone. And leave HIM alone, too. If and when Gert is single, you might consider seeing her again. But not until.

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage--What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

EAST PRAIRIE— On June 5, at 7:30 p.m. Miss Shirley Mae Hogue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hogue, and Ronald Gene Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene L. Hall were united in marriage in the First Church of God in East Prairie. The Rev. J. L. Hatchel officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Maeshall Larkins, accompanied by Mrs. James Scott at the organ, sang "Always" and "One Hand, One Heart" before the ceremony and "Oh Perfect Love" as the couple knelt at the pri-dieu.

Miss Janie Hogue, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Miss Tonya Horton, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Claudia Dunn and Miss Cindy Jones, cousins of the groom. The flower girl was Miss Marla Dunn, cousin of the groom.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white peau de soie satin. The high neckline and long sleeves were edged with Chantilly lace. Lace also trimmed the panels of the gown. The chapel length train fastened at the empire waistline and the train was edged in matching lace. The headdress was a floor length veil of nylon illusion attached to an organza blossom flower headpiece. Her bouquet was a cascade of white carnations centered with a white orchid.

The groom chose for his best man, Donald Sutton, with Monte Thurman as groomsman. The ushers were Kenny Larkins and Randy Arington. Ring bearer was Billy Dunn.

Miss Donna Turnbo, cousin of the groom, presided at the guest book. Miss Pam Davis presented the guests with net rice bags. After a short wedding trip to Kentucky Lake, the couple returned to Route One, East Prairie.

Bowles-Hale Wedding Vows

JACKSON— Miss Debra Ann Hale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hale of Jackson became the bride of Albert Jay Bowles, son of Mrs. Albert J. Bowles, Sunday, June 6 at the First Baptist Church in Jackson, with Rev. Harry W. Hunt officiating.

John M. Latimore served as best man.

The bride wore a gown of imported organza over taffeta, richly trimmed with Chantilly lace and ribbon. The high cameo neckline was overlaid with lace and more lace centered the slightly gathered wrist-length sleeves that ended with lace-covered cuffs. Two rolls of lace trellised down each side front of the gown from shoulder to hemline. Two petite ribbon bows, touched with a cluster of pearls, accented the front and back waistline. Ribbon was interlaced through the lace trim. The same trim was used for back trimming on the gown. Gathering at the waist formed back fullness.

Her cathedral-length veil of illusion was edged with matching galloon-fashioned lace and was held securely with a contoured cap overlaid with loops of scalloped lace. She carried a bouquet of white pom-poms and pink sweetheart roses.

The bride was graduated from Jackson high school in May, 1971, and the bridegroom from Charleston high school in May, 1969. They will be at home at 214 North Green Street, Charleston.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hale, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Parmley, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Cody R. Brown of Cuba, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brown, Millersville.

Outlook Dim For Vietnamese If American Forces Withdraw

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Pvt. Nguyen Huu Dinh predicts defeat for the South Vietnamese army as he scavenges discarded ammunition at a U.S. Marine garbage dump near Marble Mountain.

"When the Americans leave, the Communists will take over," he mutters. "We cannot stop them. Why are the Americans leaving?"

Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai also has qualms as he surveys enemy infiltration routes in the mist-shrouded A Shau Valley from a hilltop called Firebase Holcomb.

"I need more B52 strikes, more helicopter support, more artillery, more people," he complains. "Yet you Americans want to take your GIs home."

Privates and generals alike feel uneasy in the 1st Military Region, the five northern provinces colloquially known as Eye—for the Roman I—Corps. No one likes sitting on a powder keg the size of Maryland.

Accelerated U.S. troop withdrawals, upcoming government elections, the end of the monsoon and 207 miles of common border with North Vietnam and enemy-controlled southern Laos made Eye Corps the likeliest target of a dry season offensive.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, the corps commander, feels the crunch will come in July and August. His generals and their U.S. advisers all agree on what to expect:

—Shellings and harassing attacks against firebases along the demilitarized zone, but no large incursions across the buffer strip dividing North and South Vietnam.

—Increased terrorosim and Viet Cong political activity in the villages to prevent people from voting in the lower house election Aug. 29 and the presidential election Oct. 3.

Lam is convinced the Laotian invasion which he commanded earlier this year, known as Lam Son 719, so disrupted North Vietnamese supply lines that the enemy will be able to conduct only big-unit actions in the unpopulated border regions.

Intelligence officers say enemy strength in Eye Corps is at a peak of about 45,000 combat troops, consisting of 30,000 North Vietnamese regulars and about 15,000 in Viet Cong units.

Grand Jury Investigates Top Secret Papers Leak

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal grand jury investigation has begun here into the leak of top secret Pentagon studies on how the United States became involved in the Vietnam war.

Rand is the "think-tank" firm which was involved in the Defense Department studies. A former New York Times reporter has said onetime Rand employe Daniel Ellsberg gave copies of the study to The Times.

A Justice Department spokesman said the grand jury probe concerned possible violations of national security laws but declined elaboration. Paul C. Vincent, assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's Internal Security Division, has been in Los Angeles since Monday in connection with the probe.

Russo, a native of Suffolk, Va., who worked for Rand from 1964 to 1969, refused to testify before the jury Wednesday morning and the Justice Department immediately asked Judge William P. Gray to grant him immunity from prosecution.

Gray granted the request but Russo's attorney, Joseph A. Ball of Long Beach, Calif., said he wanted to present legal arguments challenging the immunity statute. A hearing was scheduled for Friday.

Later, the Justice Department asked the same grant of immunity for Miss Spinay and Gray approved the request. The woman, whose connection with the investigation was not immediately known, testified for about 15 minutes.

L.A. Times Publishes Secret Pentagon Paper

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Security Council rejected a recommendation by a State Department expert in 1963 that the United States should pull out of Vietnam because it could not win the war against the Communists, the Los Angeles Times reported Wednesday.

The newspaper said it learned that facet of the war in studying what it called previously unpublished sections of the secret Pentagon report on American involvement in Vietnam.

The newspaper said the recommendation was submitted by Paul M. Kattenburg, then head of the State Department's Vietnam Working Group.

Kattenburg's suggestion was overruled by Secretary of State Dean Rusk who reportedly viewed it as "speculative," the Times said.

The secretary of state was quoted as saying that "it would be far better for us to start on the firm basis of two things— that we will not pull out of Vietnam until the war is won, and that we will not run a coup."

The report on the Security Council's session on the matter is contained in a memorandum written by Marine Lt. Gen. Victor C. Krulak, who was the Pentagon's top expert on counter-insurgency warfare, the Times said.

Bond Says Confidence Lost In Jeff City Leadership

WARRESNSBURG, Mo. (AP) — The merits of political parties were discussed Wednesday night when State Auditor Christopher Bond, a Republican, and Mayor Charles Wheeler of Kansas City, a Democrat, met before delegates to Missouri Boys State.

Bond charged the people of Missouri had "lost confidence in the capacity of the Democratic leadership in Jefferson City to govern the state."

Yablonski Followers Will Continue The Battle

CLARKSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A group of miners sat in a small taproom Wednesday night and recalled their friendships with insurgent mine leader Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, his murder a year and a half ago and the confession of a man charged in the case.

Yablonski, 59, his wife and daughter were found shot to death in their beds here Dec. 31, 1969, shortly after he lost an election for president of the 20,000-member United Mine Workers union to W. A. "Tony" Boyle.

Seat-stained miners, after laboring eight or more hours underground, talked about the slaying and Claude E. Vealey's courtroom confession a few hours earlier that he was one of three men who killed the Yablonski s.

None of those questioned expressed anger at Vealey.

"The people who put him up to it should pay. I don't see how you can put the whole blame on him. He wouldn't have done it on his own. The blame should go on the people who paid him," miner Emile Lepo said.

"If I had my way, I'd turn him over to the coal miners and they'd find out who was behind it," said George Smoggie, a steelworker.

Although the UMW offered a $50,000 reward for Yablonski's killers, some of the Clarksville miners said they wondered if someone in the union was not responsible.

"We don't think it goes all the way to the top but no matter what the decision is, we'll always wonder if it wasn't someone in the union," one miner said.

"He may be dead but he's not gone, we're still here," Nick Savage, a miner for 43 years, said. "I happen to be one of those rebels, one of his boys, one of the Miners for Democracy."

"For so long, the union has been so crooked, so powerful, the only hope any miner has was Jock Yablonski, and now he's dead," another miner, John Cherup said.

Yablonski's sons Kenneth and Joseph, both sat only a few feet from Vealey as his statement was read into the record by an FBI agent in the hushed Washington County courtroom.

Anguish gathered in the eyes of both as Vealey's words told of how he and his accomplices stalked Yablonski for months before the slayings, and of how they finally broke into his stately, flagstone home in nearby Clarksville and pumped bullet after bullet into their victims from bedroom doorways. The bodies were found Dec. 31, 1969.

In other developments:

—Security, though extremely tight during Vealey's courtroom appearance, decreased Wednesday night at the Washington County Jail, where Vealey was being held earlier in a specially constructed, closely guarded maximum security area. That led to speculation that he might have been transferred to another penal institution, but local authorities declined to answer inquiries.

—Elmer Brown, Yablonski's running mate in the latter's unsuccessful 1969 bid to unseat Boyle, said he believed there were more persons and more money involved in the slayings than Vealey indicated.

Vealey pleaded guilty to three counts of murder, one for each of the victims.

In return for the plea and his statement, federal and state officials agreed to drop several secondary charges against Vealey—among them counts of conspiracy, burglary, larceny, robbery and breaking and entering.

Under Pennsylvania law, another hearing will be held later to determine the degree of Vealey's guilt and his sentence. No date was set for that proceeding, and Sprague indicated it would be delayed until Vealey testified in the trials of the four others charged in the case.

If convicted of first-degree murder, Vealey could be sent to the electric chair or sentenced to life imprisonment. But if convicted of a lesser crime, the punishment would be left to the court—in this instance a special three-judge panel.

Junk Studies Can Be Really Suggestive

NEW YORK (AP) — "For U.S. entrepreneurs going to strange foreign countries, junk studies can be very suggestive. Junk tends to be a leading economic indicator," said the professor.

At first it appeared to be a joke. But as the story unfolded, the listener realized the professor had developed a system of junk analysis and that it actually could reveal the status of a nation's economy, and perhaps its future.

And there were all the credentials, as checked in an interview: Dr. Richard N. Farmer, 43, author of eight books, professor at the Graduate School of Business, Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.

"Most economic data is erroneous for reasons beyond the control of statisticians," he wrote in the international management magazine, "Worldwide Pand I planning." P is for project, I for industry.

In quest of knowledge,Farmer has romed the junkyards of at least 10 countries.

"Every country," he maintains, "is in at least one of fivelevel junk and trash development cycles," which he labels:

1. Nothing Gets Used. Mainly because the natives don't have to skill to make use of junk. Characteristic of primitive and remote tribes of desert nomads. Per capita income of less than $50 a year.

2. Everything Gets Used. Indicative of rudimentary skills in reusing old materials. Nothing is thrown away for good. Ingenuity develops. Autos are totally stripped. Per capita income up to $200.

3. Piling Up Phase. Low grade materials show up in junkyards and about the countryside: broken bottles, cement fragments, occasional tires, leaking bottles and autos almost, but not quite totally, stripped.

"Labor, particularly skilled labor, is being drawn off into more productive pursuits, so cars begin to have bits and pieces of hard to get things left on them." The junkyard "comes into its own."

4. The Age of Affluence. Usable trash accumulates. Lots of bottles, cans, tires, occasional abandoned cars. Useful stuff appears such as copper piping, two by fours, wire. Per capita income up to $1,200. Influential people talk about ecology. Trasn no longer an asset but a costly burden.

5. Total Affluence. Per capita income up to $2,500 or more. Trash becomes a major public issue. Abandoned cars, throwaway containers, piles of paper become problems.

Proper analysis, says Farmer, can tell an awful lot about a country's wealth, skills, needs, initiative, morality, imagination and future.

"Instead of hanging around local luxury hotels, businessmen interested in what is really going on in a country should get out to see what's being done with the local junk.

Horror Films Now Find Public Favor

LONDON -- The Frankenstein-Dracula labs are booming these days. "Evil, sinister, brooding, the ruins of Karlstein castle stand dominating and ominous over the village of Styria," begins the synopsis of Lust for a Vampire. Indeed, with seven horror films now in production, London's Hammer Films can be credited for putting Transylvania back on the map.

Sir James Carreras, known affectionately in London as the Knight of Harror, is being honored for reviving the monsters and ghouls Hollywood had quietly laid to rest. Film critic Judith Crist has noted that the public has become consistently more demanding in its "pursuit of chilling thrills." Carreras is fully equal to the challenge.

Dr. Jekyll and Sister Hyde, a modern adaptation of Robert Louis Stevenson's famous novel, is now being readied for release. "We promise for the first time a sex change on screen," says Brian Clemens,the script writer. Clemens claims that the transition from man to woman is more terrifying than the previous man-to-man transformations of John Barrymore, Spencer Tracy or Fredric March.

Back in 1908 the Selig Polyscope Company of Chicago released the first Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. But the first really chilling films understandably came from Germany, claims Carlos Clarens in his book, Horror Movies. All ghouls come from such German classics as the Golem and The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari. When the Nazis took over, most of the talented directors left to enhance the horrors of the make-believe world of Hollywood.

Italian Power Now Flexes Its Muscles

By Editorial Research Reports

NEW YORK -- The second Columbus Circle Unity Day rally will be held Monday in New York City, with as many as 150,000 Italian -Americans expected to attend.

It took years for Negro civil rights groups to overturn laws and customs that deprived blacks of equal voting rights and employment opportunities, and access to desegregated schools. It took the Italian - American Civil Rights League less than a month to achieve one of its major objectives. Italian Power, long dormant, is now awake and on the march.

No fewer than 150,000 Italian - Americans and sympathizers are expected to march to Manhattan's Columbus Circle on June 28 for the second in what may turn out to be an annual series of rallies. The first rally, June 29, 1970, drew around 50,000 participants. They applauded hardest for Joseph Colombo, organizer of the IACRL and reputed head of one of New York's six Mafia "families."

It was the Mafia stigma that led Colombo and others to form the IACRL. Starting April 30, 1970, League members picketed the New York FBI office every night. They were protesting the bureau's alleged discrimination against Italian- Americans in its surveillance of underworld activities. Then, in July, Attorney General John N. Mitchell directed the Justice Department and the FBI to stop using the terms "Mafia'. and "Cosa Nostra" because they offended law -abiding citizens of Italian extraction.

Officials of the League, Nicholas Pileggi recently wrote, "have been astonished by their own success." More astonishing, however, is the fact that Italian Power did not make itself felt earlier. Ethnic - origin data from the 1970 U.S. census have not yet been released, but a special Census Bureau survey of November 1969 identified 7,239,000 Americans as of Italian descent.

Many Italian -Americans -- perhaps 90 per cent of those in New York City alone -- trace their ancestry to the impoverished southern provinces of Calabria, Apulia and Sicily. Natives of this bleak area, Pileggi asserted, "are burdened with a deadly regional Italian fatalism .... Mothers prepare their daughters for the worst, fathers advise their sons against aiming too high, and proverbs always tell of the unhappiness that awaits the overly ambitious."

Another reason why Italian -Americans have been slow to flex their muscles may be that the great wave of immigration from Italy did not begin until around 1890. By that time, immigrants from Germany and Ireland were well established and starting to move into positions of influence in politics.

Colombo's rise may be followed by an equally sudden fall. A week after charting the rise of Italian Power in New York, Pileggi added a postscript. A group of house painters, he reported, had roughed up Colombo and two or three League members in what appeared to be an ambush of sorts. Moreover, complaints were being heard that the League "never seemed to defend anyone but Colombo and that none of his peers seemed to be getting a cut of the $2 million his League had raised."

Still, the movement Colombo started continues to gather momentum. The League has enrolled more than 50,000 members to date and is signing up new ones at the rate of 1,000 a month. A 10-acre plot has been bought to house a nonprofit hospital with a narcotics center and a home for the aged. Plans are almost completed for a "unity train" to spread the League's message across the country. To paraphrase the World War I doubhboys' slogan , seven million Italian-Americans can't be wrong.

Three Die In Warrenton Accident

WARRENTON, Mo. (AP) — A Warrenton couple was killed and a Wentzville, Mo., man died later of injuries after their vehicles slammed into each other in a westbound lane of Interstate 70 late Tuesday night, the highway patrol said.

Ernest V. Yowell, 45, of Warrenton and his wife, Marcella, 42, were dead at the scene, the patrol said, after an eastbound pickup truck driven by Melvin L. Mennemeier, 36, of Wentzville entered the westbound lanes and hit their car headon.

Mennemeier died early today about three hours after the accident.

Taken to ST. Joseph hospital in Kirkwood, Mo., for treatment of injuries was the Yowell's daughter Linda Sue, 14.

A third vehicle involved in the collision was a westbound truck driven by Jimmy Penrod, 29, of St. Joseph, Mo. The patrol said the truck also struck the Yowell car. Penrod was not injured.

Teachers to Spend Weekend At Retreat

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Nineteen men of the faculty and staff of Southeast Missuri State College will depart Friday for a weekend retreat at Bunker Hill Ranch Resort in Mountain View. They will return Sunday afternoon.

Its purpose is recreation and fellowship, said Dr. David A. Strand, adding that the resort on the Jacks Forks River has excellent facilities for fishing, swimming, an canoeing.

However, Dr. Strand, dean of the college and coordinator of the retreat, also noted that the conversation often turns to serious subjects.

"The retreat provides an opportunity for people on the faculty to get together and discuss items of mutual concern relative to their work at the college or their responsibilities as educators," he said.

Faculty and staff members who will attend the retreat are, besides Dr. Strand, Dr. Lawrence Bahn and Dr. Ronald Popham of the chemistry department; Dr. John Bierk and Dr. H. O. Grauel of the English department; C. C. That's The Law

Smokey Sky Rides Allowed

When smoke got in his eyes, Horace wasn't thinking of the lyrics of a song written by Jerome Kern. He was thinking of the discomfort he suffered when the "Smoking Permitted" signs were lit on commercial airlines. Consequently, he and several other nonsmokers instituted proceedings to compel the Federal Aviation Administrator to ban smoking on the High and the Mighty.

"Under the law," they argued, "the Administrator is required to order air carriers to perform their services with the highest possible degree of safety and public interest. Smoking on planes creates a fire hazard, is deleterious to the health of nonsmoking passengers, is an annoyance and discomfort to nonsmoking passengers and causes a possible distraction to and a reduction in the crew's mental and visual alertness. Therefore, smoking on commercial planes should be banned immediately as a safety measure."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order the no-smoking signs up permanently on commercial planes?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that people have been smoking on planes for a long time without any indication that it creates a fire hazard. Nor is their any evidence that smoking of crew members reduces the level of safety on planes. Lastly, noted the judge, millions of passengers have enjoyed the freedom to smoke since the advent of commercial aviation. And, as foolish as this freedom may seem to others, he pointed out, and while it may be annoying and a discomfort to nonsmokers, it appears not to affect the safety of the flight so as to require the Federal Aviation Administrator to effect the sought-after ban.

(Based upon a 1971 United States Court of Appeals Decision).

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Come, see a man, who told me all things that ever I did: can this be the Christ? (John 4:29, ASV)

PRAYER: Lord, so speak to me that I may be able to speak of Thee to others. May my lips and life proclaim the glorious gospel of Thy redeeming grace. In Jesus' name I pray. Amen.

If you ask a kid what he wants to be when he grows up, it's probably not YOU.

Open House at Indian Site

LILBOURN— An open house at the New Madrid county site of an ancient Indian city has been scheduled for Saturday and Sunday according to the newly formed Southeast Missouri Archaeological Society.

Visitors may inspect the excavations, and to talk to archaeologists from the University of Missouri, who are conducting the research. Among them are Dr. Carl Chapman, professor of anthropology at the University of Missouri in Columbia, and David R. Evans, director of the state archaeological Survey.

The Society will also have available at the site free copies of a preliminary report on the findings.

The Lilbourn site contains the remains of a fortified town built by Mississippian people about A.D. to 1400. It contains 11 mounds, a plaza area, an area for dwellings, and several small cemetery areas.

A preview of the open house will take the form of an interview and on-site films, to be shown on the Channel 12 Breakfast Show at 6:45 p.m. Saturday, June 26. Dr. Chapman will be the speaker. A half-hour program on the Lilboun site is also being prepared by WPSD-TV, Paducah, and will be scheduled in the near future on the Wednesday night "Accent" program.

Members of the SEMO Archaeological Society are engaged in a campaign to raise funds for further research at the Lilbourn site. Historical information contained there will soon be lost forever by site preparation for a new vocational-technical school.

Persons interested in contributing to the fund may do so by sending a tax-deductible check to the SEMO Archaeological Society, c/0 Miss Harryette Campbellm, 812 Davis Blvd., Sikeston.

Recovery to Buy Two Lots

Members of Sikeston Recovery, Inc. Tuesday decided to purchase a lot from Girard Hunt on Alabama St. for $500 and a lot on Bowman St. from Mrs. Rosie Truell for $500.

They discussed at the session at the city administration building the repair of the Samuel Beech property on Dixie Street and decided to refer the matter to Linda Steward for a recommendation.

Funds Freeze Question

KANSES CITY (AP) — A federal court in Kansas City gets the question today of whether the Nixon administration can legally freeze more than $26-million in Missouri highway funds — an action taken last year to help slow inflation.

Judge William H. Becker has ordered John A. Volpe, secretary of transportation, and George P. Shultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget, to appear to answer questions about the freezing of funds allotted to the Missouri Highway Commission. 5 80ajjnb' L. Hyder, commission chief counsel, says a 1968 congressional act prohibits the withholding of federal money for any reason except insufficient money in the source fund.

Joseph Bruening of Kansas City, a commiss7.n member, said he would be very surprised if Volpe and Shultz show up for today's court hearing.

No. 1 Cont. from page 1

By being board chairman, he is automatically mayor and police judge.

"I didn't run to clear up anything in particular," he explained. "Nor did I run to tear down anything already standing. I didn't even campaign.

"I'd say the most responsibility I feel is in being judge. I've bought a set of state statutes and been doing some heavy readin'."

"I've been well pleased," he said. "I've had a lot of cooperation. Everyone who has been asked to serve on a committee and so forth, has accepted."

When asked what improvements he plans to make in Miner's future, he plunged in.

"We've planned a town meeting for June 29 for all the townspeople to express their ideas and desires. The Bootheel Regional Planning Commission has made an extensive study of our needs and status, and the reports are available to anyone at the town office."

The Sadlers have been active in Church. He has taught Sunday school classes at First Baptist Church eight years, first teaching junior boys and now young adult men.

"It fills a need," he said, "a need we all have, for a lot of growth and maturing as Christians. I guess teaching this class (young adults) represents the greatest challenge. I've always liked people and I like to know what motivates them."

His own motivation?

"Family," he answered softly, "I would suppose – not money. That isn't happiness. Financial security isn't the answer either.

Sadler's daughter, Sharon, is 16, Kenneth is 14, and Mike is nine. The three were born and reared in Sikeston.

"How have your philosophies about life influenced your children?" I asked.

"I think our kids are terrific," he answered. "We have a fine family home life and relationship. You have to influence your kids by your every day lives. I don't demand yes Ma'm's and no ma'm's..... just consideration and respect for those around them. I do try to know where they are and what they're doing and I try to influence what they do."

The conversation slowed for a moment and he said thoughtfully, "You know, in talking to my Sunday school class and others, I find that one reason it's so hard to relate to church-going people is 'cause sometimes as church people, we are no different."

Sadler's hobbies are woodworking, farming and raising livestock. He owns a partnership with Dr. Wendell Weathers in 220 acres of farm land near Puxico. They raise thoroughbred horses and cattle.

"We don't make money," he joked, "but we have a lot of fun!"

He has a large basement workship where he did custom picture framing until he injured his back. His pet project was the addition of a large bedroom to the house. Handsomely decorated in black leather, massive furniture and a red carpet, the room has been dubbed the "judge's chambers." It is complete with a remote control television set.

Sadler's wife, Peggy, raises horses as a hobby and began breaking registered quarter horses. She started riding in shows six years ago, and along with youngest son, Mike, boasts a basketful of ribbons.

Sadler describes her as "dedicated, always there and willing to aid the family in any way. She loves horses, never sees an ugly one."

About his children,

"I don't intend to choose a career for them," he said, "if that 's what you mean. I hope they are prepared to choose and think through something they will be happy with."

"How is the mayor business?" I asked in conclusion.

"Well," he answered, drawling lazily on his pipe, "there's more to it than I expected. Take yesterday, for example. A man moved a house into town without a permit, a dog got stuck in tar alongside the railroad tracks – I expected some really bad publicity from that – and we had to get an electrician to repair a switch at the water plant. Just things like that...problems you don't think about if your're not concerned."

That's the kind of man who is mayor of Miner — concerned.

Tryout Camp

CHAFFEE — A one-day tryout camp for baseball players will be conducted by the Cincinnati Reds on Wednesday. High school sophomores and juniors may attend.

Reds Scouting Supervisor Chet Montgomery will oversee the tryout which is scheduled from 10 a.m. -3 p.m. at Harmon Field.

Montgomery will be assisted by scouts Bob Jamison, Bill Bradshaw and Cluster Williams.

All eligible players are requested to furnish their own personal gear -- shoes uniforms gloves. The Reds will provide bats and baseballs.

In addition, players will be responsible for traveling and living expense, if any, unless they are signed to contracts with Cincinnati Reds organization teams.

Players must be 16 to be eligible and all American Legion players must have written approval from their Legion Coaches or Post Commanders if attendance at the tryout is in direct conflict with American Legion activities.

Players attending high schools still in session will be permitted to participate only upon presentation of written permission from the principal of the high school they attend.

Terry Scudder

Scudder Tops Navy Softball

Specialist third class Terry Scudder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scudder, is playing fast pitch softball in the Navys' Special Services Team.

Terry fills the left field position and is leading the league in home runs and runs batted in , in this League, which has a 90-game schedule in the East with its' home base, Little Creek, Va.

The team, which has a record of 20 wins and six losses, hopes to be major contender, when the Navys' World Series is played in Memphis in August.

Scudder is a 1967 graduate of Sikeston high school, where he lettered in football, baseball, and track for 3 years, and also was a member of the 1967 Connie Mack World Series team that journeyed to Lamar, Col., and Farmington, N.M., and battled their way to the finals.

Powell cracked two home runs and a single Wednesday night, pacing the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-5 victory and finally bringing his batting average over the .200 mark.

Odom, the Oakland blazer who missed the first month of the season following elbow surgery, shut out Minnesota for 7 2-3 innings and beat the Twins 8-3 with relief help in the ninth to square his pitching record at 3-3.

And, in an afternoon game, the White Sox continued to apply their newfound sock, walloping Kansas City 12-3 for their fourth straight triumph and a 46-run total during the winning streak.

Elsewhere in the American League, the New York Yankees nipped Detroit 6-5 on Gene Michael's 13th inning homer; Boston edged Cleveland 2-1 on a homer by Joe Lahoud and Milwaukee split a doubleheader with California, winning 6-0 and then bowing 9-5.

In National League play, Philadelphia downed Cincinnati 4-0 on Rick Wise's no-hitter; Pittsburgh bounced the New York Mets 6-2; San Francisco beat the Chicago Cubs 5-2; Montreal topped Atlanta 6-3; St. Louis took Los Angeles 3-1 in 10 innings and San Diego swept a pair from Houston 2-3 in 12 innings and 4-3.

Powell, the American League's most valuable player last season, took a .178 average into Washington Monday night but has boosted it 31 points to .209 after drilling nine hits, for eight RBI, in the three games in which he has batted.

His 10th and 11th homers accounted for three Baltimore runs Wednesday night, helping Jim Palmer gain his 10th victory with ninth inning relief help.

Odom, who had failed to last seven innings in six previous starts since coming off the disabled list, blanked the Twins on three hits until Harmon Killebrew singled and Rich Reese homered with two out in the eighth. Ron Perranoski replaced Odom after Leo Cardenas' leadoff homer in the ninth.

Rick Monday drove in three runs with a double and single and Curt Blefary homered to trigger the Oakland attack.

The White Sox, who had lost six one-run games on a frustrating road trip, turned the corner last Sunday at Minnesota by pasting the Twins 18-8. Then they returned to Chicago and beat Kansas City 5-1 and 11-6 in the first two games of their three-game set.

In the series finale, Bill Melton belted his 14th homer of the season; Tom Egan delivered three runs with a pair of doubles and Luis Alvarado had three hits and two RBI to back the six-hit pitching of knuckleballer Wilbur Wood.

Lahoud's seventh inning homer at Boston decided a pitching duel between winner Ray Culp, who flipped a fivehitter, and Cleveland's Sam McDowell, who also yielded five hits and struck out 14.

McDowell stroked a run-scoring single in the second inning, but the Red Sox tied it in the sixth on Billy Conigliaro's runscoring triple.

But the Angels struck back in the second game with an 18-hit assault to give first-time starter Eddie Fisher his sixth victory in 10 decisions. Syd O'Brien, Sandy Alomar, Alex Johnson and Ken McMullen each had three hits for California.

Kiwanis blasted two home runs and scored three runs in the last inning to defeat Lions, 4-0, in the first National League baseball game last night.

The nightcap between the Pizza Inn and Jaycees turned out to be an equally close contest. The Jaycees picked up one run in each of the last four innings to defeat Pizza Inn, 4-3.

Crouch and Silverthorn belted home runs for Kiwanis in the night's opener. McCormick collected two of the team's seven hits. Kiwanis scored one run in the first inning, than added the three final runs. Crouch's leadoff home run opened the last inning while Silverthorn collected his two runs batted in with two out in the inning.

Butler was on the mound for Kiwanis and collected the two-hit win.

Brashears, Medelberg, and Watkins collected Lion's only three hits. Watkins and Griffin teamed on the mound for Lions with Watkins receiving the loss.

In the final four innings in the second game, walks and key singles moved four runs across for the Jaycees. One run came in each of the final innings, as the Pizza Inn lost their 3-0 lead held in the fourth inning.

Cross and Couch belted doubles for the Pizza Inn, two of their team's three hits. Couch and Chaney worked the mound for the Inn, and Chaney was the loosing hurler.

Cloud, Keller, Burton, and Vogel ripped the Jaycee's four hits in the contest. Cloud was the winning hurler. Scoring:

Wise No-Hits Reds

Seven years ago Rick Wise watched Jim Bunning pitch a perfect game, then went out and recorded his first major league victory. On Wednesday night, Wise came within one batter of duplicating Bunning's incredible feat.

"I was well aware of the situation all the way," Wise said after he fired a no-hitter against the Cincinnati Reds—the second in three weeks suffered by the beleaguered National League Champions—and led the 4-0 triumph with a pair of home runs.

Wise faced just one batter more than the minimum 27, retiring the first 16 he faced, surrendering a one-out walk to Dave Concepcion in the sixth, then setting down the remaining 11 Reds.

"The crowd really encouraged me," Wise said of the 13,329 Cincinnati fans who began rotting loudly for him in the seventh inning and, by the ninth, were booing every ball and cheering every strike.

Wednesday night's victory was his 66th triumph for the Phils and his eighth in 12 decisions this year.

In other National League night action, Pittsburgh whipped the Mets 6-2, Montreal clipped Atlanta 6-3, St. glouis topped Los Angeles 3-1 in 10 innings, San Francisco flipped the Cubs 5-2 in an afternoon game and, in a two-night doubleheader, San Diego edged Houston 3-2 in a 12-inning opener, then made it a sweep with a 4-3 nightcap triumph.

In the American League Boston squeezed by Cleveland 2-1 and the Chicago White Sox bombed Kansas City 12-3 in day games, Milwaukee split a twinight bill with California, winning 6-0 then losing 9-5 and, in night action, Oakland shelled Minnesota 8-3, Baltimore topped Washington 7-5 and the New York Yankees beat Detroit 6-5 in 13 innings.

Roger Freed's second-inning grounder gave Wise the only run he needed, driving in Joe Lis who had been hit by a pitch and moved to third on Willie Montanez' double.

Then, getting back to his pitching, he admitted: "I wasn't feeling good when I warmed up." But after changing sweatshirts three times in the hot, humid night, then discarding them completely after the sixth inning, "I started feeling stronger.

"I went to just three pitches," he said, "My fast ball, my slider and my curve."

The Pirates, regaining their 4½-game lead over New York in the National League East, were paced by Willie Stargell's three-run homer in the first inning and RBI double in the second. His 26 homers and 72 RBI lead the majors. Cleon Jones had a homer for the Mets.

Rusty Staub led the Expos' triumph with two singles that knocked in three runs and Bob Bailey chipped in with his eighth homer while Darrell Evans drilled a two-run shot for the Braves.

The Cardinals, limited to one hit through seven innings by Dodgers' starter Don Sutton, tied the game 1-1 in the eighth, then won it in the 10th on runscoring singles by Lou Brock and Joe Torre off reliever Jim Brewer.

Ken Henderson of the Giants snapped a 2-2 tie with a leadoff homer in the eighth and Juan Marichal, en route to his 10th victory, added a two-run blast later in the innings to wip Chicago.

The Padres won their 12-inning opener that snapped a seven-game losing string as Enzo Hernandez slapped a one-out single to center field, moved to second on winning pitcher Bob Miller's sacrifice bunt and scored on Tommy Dean's single to left.

In the second game, Angel Bravo, who had sent the first contest into extra innings with a pinch double, delivered another one that scored Dave Campbell with the winning run. Reliever Bob Miller, 5-2, got the victory in each game.

Parma Tops Dexter, 12-4

PARMA -- Doyle Crews and John McCulloch scattered three hits while Wilson Strong and Larry McClung led a 11-hit attack as the Independents racked Dexter, 12-4, Wednesday night.

Crews picked up the victory, going six innings and giving up two hits. McCulloch stopped the visitors on a single run in the final two innings.

Strong belted two homers to head the Parma assault, scoring three times and going three for four at the plate. McClung had three safeties in four trips. Jerry White was one for two, scoring three times.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Everybody in the Philadelphia Phillies dugout freely talked about it as Rick Wise pitched a no hitter against the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday night 4-0, except manager Frank Lucchesi.

"It's a lot of nonsense about not talking about it," said catcher Tim McCarver. "We discussed it openly in the dugout. I talked about it every inning with Bob Doyle. I even said a few things about it to Lucchesi but he didn't answer."

"I didn't move for about five innings and I'll admit it," said Lucchesi. "I'm superstitious!

"All I could say, and I must have said it 50 or 100 times, 'come on Rick.' I figured the man upstairs was helping him but he's a real nonchalant guy. He's a real good thrower. I've seen him throw harder but he's really maturing. He's my most consistant pitcher."

"This has to be the biggest thrill of my life," said Wise (84). He also blasted two home runs bringing in three of the four runs.

"I feel this is my second nohitter," said the 195, 6-foot-2 native of Jackson, Mich.

He said his one-hitter against the Dodgers in Los Angeles, Aug. 8, 1968, should have been the first. He complained that an official scorer gave Jeff Torberg a hit when Orlando Penna bobbled a grounder in the third inning.

"I still consider that a no-hitter in my book," Wise said.

Franchise Shift

Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Pro basketball is returning to Houston for another try—and this time it will have hometown hero Elvin Hayes going for it.

The Big E. and the rest of the San Diego Rockets are now the Houston Rockets via sale of the franchise Wednesday night to a group which will operate it in the Texas city beginning right away.

Announcement of the shift was made by NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy at a hastily called news conference during the league's annual board of governors' meetings. He said the sale price was $5.6 million.

Cards Survive 10-Inning Battle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pitching 14 innings without giving up a run isn't much of a feat unless it happens in relief, in the last inning or two of a tough game. Then it's indeed impressive.

That's what Los Angeles' Jim Brewer had pieced together in 10 games but it came to a shattering halt in the 10th inning Wednesday night at Dodger Stadium.

St. Louis bounced him for two runs in the 10th inning en route to 3-1 victory which spoiled another sparkling pitching performance by the Dodgers' Don Sutton.

The Cardinals were the last team to score on Brewer, more than a month ago on May 18 in St. Louis, and they handed him his second loss of the season Wednesday evening.

"Jim Brewer is the best reliever in baseball," praised St. Louis' Lou Brock after Wednesday's game. Brock was the man who drove home the tiebreaking run in the Cards' tworun 10th.

It was the Cardinals' twin superstars—brock and Joe Torre—who singled home the two runs which defeated the Dodgers and dropped them 8½ games behind San Francisco in the National League West.

Brock's average now is .337 yet he just laughs about the prospect of wnn a batting title.

"We're a different club this year than last season," he said.

"Last year we were waiting for the long ball all the time. Not this year. We've got guys who can hit all through the lineup. Now we're hitting and running and doing just about everything."

For seven innings Wednesday night the Cards were restricted to an infield single by Matty Alou as Sutton followed his onehitter the previous outing with another near flawless performance.

He surrendered the second hit in the eighth inning, a pinch double by Jim Beauchamp who wound up scoring the tying run on a sacrifice fly by Jose Cardenal.

Luis Melendez opened the 10th with a pinch single and scored on a single by Brock. Torre singled home Alou who was aboard with his third single of the evening.

Royals Slump

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City Royals stayed in their slump in Chicago, while the St. Louis Cardinals are on their way back as they stopped the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 in Los Angeles.

Lou Brock and Joe Torre drilled run-scoring singles in the tenth inning to spark the Cards to a come-from-behind victory over the dodgers. It was the Cards second victory in a row over the west coast team and strengthtens their hold on third place in the National League East.

The White Sox rolled to their three-game sweep over Kansas City with a 12-3 margin. It didn't look that way early, as the Royals pulled to a 2-2 tie in the third inning.

But starter Paul Splittorff gave up three mor4 in the third and one in the fourth. He was replaced by Dick Drago, the club's No. 1 starter. Drago faced Bill Melton, the last man he pitched to in the previous night's rout. Just as on Tuesday, Melton connected with a home run; and things steadily went from bad to worse for the Royals.

The Royals head for Omaha, where they play a 7 p.m. exhibition game against their Triple-A farm club. They then move to Oakland and a fourgame weekend series.

St. Louis closes its LA series with a 3 p.m. game today. Reggie Cleveland (6-6) will be on the mound for St. Louis, facing Al Downing (7-4).

Mutual Fund Performance Gives Wall Street Heartburn

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — If the mutual fund industry zigs when it should have zagged, it creates heartburn or worse on Wall Street. That's what happened on June 18 in the wake of the announcement that mutual fund shareholders cashed in more shares than were purchased in May for the first time in the industry's 30-year history. The news helped shave 17 points off the Dow -Jones Industrial Average for the day, and dimmed prospects for a traditional summer rally on Wall Street.

As mutual funds go, so goes the market. By sitting on their $53.6 billion in assets and refusing to trade stocks in any great volume, the funds can put heavy downward pressure on average stock prices. Conversely, when they reach a consensus to buy in volume -- as they have for most of the last year -- their purchasing power can touch off a bull market.

The worrisome aspect of the May sales - redemption ratio lies in the fear that a continuation of the trend will force the mutual funds to sell stocks from their portfolios to meet the cash demands. A forced sale of stock would be bad news for the market.

Mutual funds, pension and endowment funds, and insurance companies form what are known as institutions. Their power to set the tone for the stock market is nearly absolute. The pseudonymous Adam Smith catches some of their mystique in The Money Game (1968):

"There is a They out there in in the market . . . Who are They? Well, They are the people who move stocks. They get the information first, maybe. They even create the information, and They are about to put the stock up or down. They are mysterious, anonymous, powerful and They know everything. Nothing fazes Them. They are the powers of the marketplace."

The charisma faded in the late 1960s after go - go fund managers gleefully discarded many of the old investment guidelines in the headlong rush for flashy "performance." For a while, the smaller aggressive funds with an accent on action and growth rather than safety out - per formed the stock market as a whole. But the gun - slingers' in -an -out trading of glamor stocks contributed to -- perhaps brought on -- the Great Bear Market of 1969-70. Then the most aggressive funds suffered the most.

The so-called cult of performance may have undermined the very structure of mutual funds. In a belated reaction, Congress last year enacted the first substantial changes in the regulation of mutual funds in 30 years. Broad regulatory authority over mutual funds limited their sales charges and curbed certain questionable practices of the industry.

But it has not been easy to restore public confidence. Some of the 5.5 million Americans who own shares in mutual funds may have decided last month to bail out, figuring that the funds had run the market up as far as it could go for the near future. Memories are sharp of how the money managers took them on a downhill ride two years ago.

"Redemptions, like sales, are linked to the bear market and this is its aftermath," commented the Investment Company Institute in releasing the May figures. The institute noted hopefully that several large fund members have reported their June sales are up from May, and said that "economic upturns following past recessions typically have brought new highs in fund sales." On Wall Street, they're praying the Institute is right because without fresh flows of money the market is dead.

Three Rivers Posts Gain in Enrollment

POPLAR BLUFF--On-campus enrollment in the current summer session of Three Rivers Junior College totaled 298 at the end of the second week, a slight gain over last year's figure of 296.

The most significant gain noted in this summer session was an increase of 30 in the day academic program. The figure this year is 213, as against 183 for last year.

The total enrollment for the summer session last year was 311, including 15 members of an extension class at Van Buren which began in the spring. This year's total enrollment will increase by at least 31 to a total of 329 on July 1, when an adult vocational agriculture program opens in Piedmont with 25 students and six additional students will enroll in an adult vocational agriculture program under way on the Poplar Bluff campus.

The adult vocational agriculture program here and at Piedmont is being limited at the outset to veterans eligible for benefits under the GI bill. Later adult programs of continuing education in agriculture will be open to non-veterans.

Wisconsin Welfare Rolls At 'Crisis Proportions'

Wisconsin spent $101,532,000 on 113,822 welfare recipients in fiscal 1964-65. The state spent $267,048,000 on 173,853 recipients in fiscal 1969-70.

The situation, says the assistant director of the Health and Social Services Department, has reached "crisis proportions."

The statistics in Wisconsin's case explain why welfare programs in many states around the country are being closely reviewed in an effort to halt spiraling costs.

State legislatures have proposed adding residency requirements for welfare recipients; others have proposed public works programs for able bodied persons on relief rolls; others have instituted administrative reforms. Others, as in Wisconsin's case, are seeking to shift much—if not all—of the welfare responsibility to the federal government.

An Associated Press survey showed about half the states considered some sort of welfare reform during the 1971 legislative session. Nine states passed laws to tighten regulations; similar measures are pending in six other states. Four states made administrative reforms to save money. And four states—Utah, Nebraska, Indiana and Georgia—liberalized existing laws.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York proposed and the state legislature approved a welfare reform package that included establishment of a oneyear residency requirement.

The U.S. Supreme Court, in a 1969 ruling involving Connecticut, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, invalidated such residency requirements.

Rockefeller noted, however, that the decision said the states could impose such a law "only for compelling reasons," and in announcing his program he said, "Believe me ... we've got compelling reasons."

Several other states have followed Rockefeller's lead. Hawaii established a one-year residency requirement to cope with what officials called "the inundation of transients who have been flocking to our shores in each of the nearest social service office."

Other states considering such laws—either as a total solution or as part of a larger reform package—included Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio, California and Rhode Island.

Connecticut, involved in the original Supreme Court ruling, considered a proposal for a residency requirement. The measure died but Gov. Thomas J. Meskill has asked legislators to reconsider the measure during a special session.

Also under consideration in many areas is creation of public works programs, designed to provide jobs and improve the community.

Pipe Bomb In Purse Fails to Go

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—A pipe bomb hidden in a purse failed to go off at a crowded City Council meeting Monday night and was removed by police after about 400 persons had been evacuated.

Police said later that the device, discovered after an anonymous caller warned that it was set to explode at 9 p.m., couldn't have gone off because it lacked a blasting cap.

The bomb had a time device set for 9 p.m. but it had stopped at 8:10, officials said.

Mayor Ron James ordered the council chambers emptied of a standing-room-only crowd drawn by a debate on a controversial mobile housing development rezoning proposal. It took until 9:10 p.m. to clear everyone.

It was not known who left the purse.

With Spread of Disease

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP)—The Lower Rio Grande Valley may become a battleground in the fight to stop the northward spread of a horse disease which threatens the horse industry in the United States.

A task force of animal and human health authorities, both state and federal, began assembling at Harlingen Tuesday to formulate plans to halt the spread of Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis Vee.

Although no case of the disease has been confirmed in the United States, there has been a confirmed case within 200 miles of the Texas-Mexico border near Tampico, officials said. Another case, described as "clincially observed," but not confirmed, has been noted within 50 miles of the border. This case was reported between San Fernando and San Teresa, Mexico, in Northern Tamualipas state.

Agencies represented in the task force being assumbled at Harlingen were the Texas Animal Health Commission, U. S. Agriculture Department, Texas Health Department, and the U.S. Public Health Service.One portion of the plan to combat the disease would call for aerial spraying for mosquitoes, the main carrier of the disease. Other plans call for working with county agents and local veterinarians in spreading information about the disease. Local veterinarians would also be asked to watch for symptoms of the disease which is a form of "sleeping sickness." The disease can spread to humans, but it is not as serious.

The spread of the disease from South and Central America to Southern Mexi c last year resulted in the death ob about 6,000 horses.

British Claims Defector Unimportant

LONDON (AP) — Some British security authorities said Tuesday that Soviet defector Anatoly Fedoseyev is a comparatively unimportant electronics engineer and not the key space scientist he was reported to be.

Other sources said Fedoseyev was an important Soviet official, but the British government wanted to play down his defection to minimize its effect on relations between the major Western nations and the Soviet Union.

Fedoseyev defected May 27 during the Paris Air Show, where he was deputy chief of the Soviet delegation. The British government announced Sunday that he had been given permission to stay in Britain, and there were reports that he was the brains behind the Soyuz space station program and the robot moon exploration program.

Soviet Ambassador Mikhail N. Smirnovsky demanded Monday night that the Foreign Office allow a member of his staff to interview Fedoseyev. This appeared to indicate that the man was more than a minor official.

The Foreign Office said it would relay the demand to Fedoseyev. But Undersecretary Sir Denis Greenhill told Smirnovsky that Fedoseyev was free to contact the embassy anytime he wanted to.

The government had the 52year-old defector under guard somewhere in the London area and was reported still questioning him.

The Guardian newspaper said intelligence sources told it "the man was proving of positive value" and the interrogation "is far from complete."

"It was understood that unofficial approaches have been made for permission for American specialists and agents to meet him," The Guardian said.

Organizers of a scientific symposium at Cambridge University said they had no idea whether Fedoseyev's defection had caused the cancellation of an appearance by four Hungarian nuclear scientists at the symposium this week.

Three of the scientists telegraphed last Friday that they could not come because of "financial difficulties." The fourth withdrew two weeks ago, after Fedoseyev disappeared from his Paris hotel.

Q—Is the Black Forest in Germany really a forest?

Vacationers Need to Check Inuurance

BALTIMORE – If you're the average American family vacation time is bearing down on you. But before taking off for the mountains or seashore, a check of insurance coverage for your own protection is a must.

An initial check of your auto insurance may be both revealing and a bit frightening. Many car owners, while well aware that they are insured, have little understanding of the amounts of protection their policy affords them. Far too many drivers obtain the minimum amount of insurance required by state law, which often is a policy with $10,000/ $20,000/ $5,000 limits. What these figures mean are that the individual is covered up to $10,000 for injuries to any one person, a maximum of $20,000 for all injuries resulting from one auto accident, and $5000 maximum for damage to property.

These limits may fulfill the requirements for a particular state's law, but they are often inadequate in today,s world of inflated claim settlements. For only a few more dollars, liability coverage can be doubled. The basic 1-/20/5 coverages also fail to meet liability coverages in several of the states through which you might travel.

A good example is California where basic limits are $15,000/ $30,000/ $5000. Should you become involved in an accident in California that results in an injury or death, you can have your car impounded if you lack the required coverage and are unable to post a bond.

Another check for traveling motorists, is to be sure all people driving your vehicle are of legal age to drive in the state through which you are passing. Most states permit driving at the age 16, however there are others where a special permit is needed to operate a car under the age of 18. New York is one example. A driver there under 18 must have a junior drivers permit that has been issued by the state.

If driving in Canada, the U.S. motorist is covered by his auto insurance policy in the provinces of Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta. In all other provinces however, he needs a statement of financial responsibility from his insurance company. Driving in Mexico can be a complicated affair, especially if an accident occurs. Check with your agent before taking your vehicle across the border.

Homeowners policies are another area of concern and possible benefit for the vacationer. Most homes are underinsured, having never been revalued since their purchase. Cases of theft and burglary often occur when the family is away for weeks at a time. Be sure you are fully covered for the contents of your home. There have been cases where homes have been completely vandalized during a family's absence. To your benefit, thefts occuring to property which you take with you on a trip, usually are covered by your homeowners policy. The limit on this type of coverage is up to 10 percent of the contents coverage on your home. There is a limit on the amount of coverage extended to jewelry, cameras, furs and other valuables. Additional coverage for these items can usually be purchased at the rate of a few dollars premium per $ 00 of protection.

With camping being the rage that it is, a trailer may well be part of your vacation caravan. Check carefully on your automobile policy's coverage of any towed vehicle. Often they will include coverage of a trailer, but only on a limited basis.

HAMSTER DOCTOR

QUESTION; I want to give my hamster some vitamins and things to keep him well. How do I go about treating these animals? (Virginia Stanley, Canton, Ohio)

Dear Virginis, Lucky for you hamsters do not get sick very often. Most of the commercial laboratory animal feeds have ample vitamins and minerals mixed in their rations. Animals with a low vitamin condition will not gain headway from these rations, so additions must be made. A drop or two of any good human liquid vitamin in the drinkingwater each day will do. Vitamin C must be added from time to time. A drop or two of lemon juice every day also is good. Liquid vitamins may be added to bread crust to fool those animals who don't like their water adulterated. Hamsters get colds from exposure. This means sunlight exposure and a limited amount of handling. Do not attempt to poke drugs down the throat of your pets. This will surely upset their digestion. Check the teeth from time to time. long incisor and impacted molar teeth will stop their eating. Your veterinarian should see your hamster once a year for a complete physical examination. (You may send your questions to Dr. Eagle, P O. Box 1042, Columbia, Mo 65201)

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1948, the Soviet Union bloackaded all land traffic between Berlin and West Germany. The next day American and British planes began to supply the city in a gigantic airlift that lasted 321 days.

On this date:

In 1793, the first Republican constitution in France was adopted.

In 1940, in World War II, the French government of Marshal Petain signed an armistice with Italy.

In 1942, the Dutch royal family, in exile since the Nazi occupation of the Netherlands, arrived in the United States to establish temporary residence. In 1944 U.S. troops fighting in France were closing in on the city of Cherbourg.

Ten years ago: Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said a new economic program he was launching would make the Soviet Union the richest country in the world.

Six-Fold Increase in Drug Treatment Centers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration announced Tuesday a six-fold increase in its drug treatment centers in line with President Nixon's order to tackle the drug addiction problem among Vietnam veterans.

VA Administrator Donald E. Johnson said 14 more centers will be opened next month and an additional 13 created by next Oct. 1. The VA noew has five specialized drug treatment centers in operation.

The announcement followed a Pentagon estimate that 10 per cent, or about 25,000, of the U.S. troops in Vietnam are believed to use heroin, with approximately half estimated to be addicts.

Raising the VA drug centers to 32, Johnson said, will permit the annual care of an estimated 6,000 veteran-addicts in addition to veterans already receiving drug treatment in regular VA hospitals.

The first VA center opened last October here in Washington, Similar centers were activated last January in New York City, Houston, Tex., Battle Creek, Mich., and Sepulveda, Calif.

The 14 new drug centers scheduled to be opened formally next month will be located in Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo, N.Y., Syracuse, N.Y., Salem, Va., Miami, Fla., Oklahoma City, Minneapolis, Brecksville, Ohio, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Pa., Iowa City, Iowa, Palo Alto, Calif. and Salt Lake City.

The 13 additional centers planned before Oct. 1 will be at East Orange, N.J., Philadelphia, Atlanta, New Orleans, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Vancouver, Wash., Brentwood, Calif., Brooklyn, North Little Rock, Ark., Omaha, Topeka, Kan., and Denver.

U.S. May Renegotiate Panama Canal Treaty

PANAMA CITY (AP) — Sometime soon the United States must sit down with an unhappy Panama to start negotiations for a new treaty on the Panama Canal.

The important waterway which knifes through Panama is a course of growing aggravation for Panamanians who feel U.S. control over the Canal Zone offends Panama's sovereignty and national dignity.

The issue of a new treaty—to give Panama jurisdictional control over the Canal Zone—has become a rallying point for an increasing nationalism in Panama.

A 1903 treaty gives the United States legal jurisdiction over the 15-mile wide Canal Zone. This has rankled Panama for a long time and led to riots in 1964 that caused the U.S. government to agree to negotiate a new treaty to end all sources of conflict.

By 1967 the draft treaties were ready, but they were never ratified by either government. Last August, Panamanian strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos renounced the 1967 drafts. His government said they did not remove the main source of conflict—U.S. control over what is considered here to be Panamanian territory.

Their position is that Panama will demand the 1903 treaty be junked and Panama given sovereignty over the Canal Zone. The United States would be allowed to operate the canal under Panamanian supervision.

One of Panama's arguments is that the Canal Zone is a product of colonialism and therefore violates the United States charter. The U.N. charter, argues Lopez Guevara, takes precedence over the 1903 treaty.

Flag Requests Keep U.S. Capitol Pole Busy

WASHINGTON (AP) — For a large part of nearly every working day one American flag after another is run up a pole over the U.S. Capitol, allowed to flutter for a second or two then lowered.

There is no special occasion being marked. The activity, which takes up several hours, is to satisfy requests to members of Congress by the folks back home for flags that have flown over the venerable building.

According to Philip Roof, executive assistant to the Capitol architect, the demand is so great each flag is limited to a quick up-and-down.

Some days hundreds of flags are flown, Roof said, with the total last year reaching a record 31,700.

There were 23,700 flown in 1969 and 21,000 in 1968. From 1937 through 1970, 226,568 flags were flown.

Through May this year, 11,185 flags were flown.

The largest number of flags flown in a single day was on July 4 1960, when more than 5,000 were flown. This was after Hawaii and Alaska became states and the 50-star flag became official.

Constituents writing for flags must send checks for payment. The flag is purchased from a Capitol stationary shop and sent to the architect's office. Constituents may ask for 3-by-5 or 5-by-8 foot flags. The 3-by-5 flag costs $3.39, the 5-by-8 $6.22.

After it is flown, the flag and a letter signed by Architect of the Capitol George M. White is sent to the constituent attesting the flag was flown over the Capitol on a certain date.

Froehlke Nominated For Cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Nixon announced Tuesday he is nominating Robert F. Froehlke for promotion from assistant secretary of Defense for administration to secretary of the Army.

Froehlke, 48, is a native of Neenah, Wis., practiced law in Madison and later became an attorney and executive vice president of a Stevens Point Life Insurance Company. In between he was on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin Law School.

In his new job, Froehlke is succeeding Stanley R. Resor, who has resigned and his salary will go up from $38,000 to $42,000.

Overseas Mail Rates Increased

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Postal Service announced Monday new overseas postal rates which are expected to add $20.6 million to annual revenues.

Effective July 1, air mail letters to all countries outside the Western Hemisphere will be 21 cents a half ounce, a 1-cent increase over the present rate for Europe and North Africa but 4 cents below the current rate for other countries including most of Africa, Asia, Australia and the Pacific area.

Air mail letters to Western Hemisphere nations, except Canada and Mexico, will increase from 15 to 17 cents. Air mail rates for Canada and Mexico went to 11 cents last month.

Widow Files For Husband's Legislative Seat

County Republicans were expected to select a nominee for the seat later this afternoon, county GOP Central Committee Chairman Barry Short said.

Group Agrees To Buy Bank At Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—A Springfield insurance executive, an attorney and the corporation they serve as officers have agreed to purchase controlling interest in the Empire Bank of Springfield.

E. H. Green, president of Green Investment Company, said Monday that W. E. Parker and attorney Gerald H. Lowther have agreed, along with the founders of American Investment Corporation, to purchase the interest in the bank.

The ice cream sundae is said to have originated about 1897 in the Red Cross Pharmacy in Ithaca, N.Y., directly opposite the barroom of the Ithaca Hotel. As the barroom was closed on Sunday, thirsty patrons went to the drug store where a distinctive drink was sold as a sundae.
